FIRST STORY OF LONDON AIR RAID

LEONARD FACES FOES

FENWAY PARK, Sept. 17.—Another throng of rising 20,000 was on hand when the Red Sox and Detroit Tygers began the second battle of their crucial series today. The vast crowd began pouring into the park the minute the gates were opened, and for more than an hour all roads led to the ball yard.

Manager Carrigan sent "Dutch" Leonard into the box to tame the Tygers. Carrigan was thoroughly rolled at the way in which the Red Sox let the foe sneak away with the opening game. He sent them onto the field with orders to grab off today's contest or hear from him.

Hughey Jennings, tickled over having landed the first setto, picked James, one of his most willing and able workers, for mound duty.

There's a World's Series air of excitement in the big crowd, which sat around the park with coats and hats off, presenting a vast sea of white, which undulated with the motion of fanning score cards and hats.

Ty Cobb created a stir of interest when he trotted onto the field for the early practice. The Red Sox worked out in lively style and gave promise of going after today's game for all there was in them.

Crisis Near on Conscription

All F Type of U. S. Submarines Are Condemned

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—All of the F type of submarines were today ordered out of commission by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. The reason assigned is that they are unsafe.

Secretary Daniels said that it was now agreed that the F-4 sank while being tried out off Honolulu harbor because of an explosion of her batteries. The report of the examining board to this effect, he stated, convinced him that the type was too dangerous to continue in service until a plan for making them safe had been devised.

Yacht Mallard of Boston on Rocks

The Boston pleasure yacht Mallard, owned by Scott Tolman of Boston, went ashore on "The Nubble," York Beach, and was towed into Kittery, leaking badly, according to word that came to Boston today.

The yacht went ashore in the early morning mist. She lost her rudder and rudder post, and part of her rigging. She is a two-master, with a gasoline auxiliary.

Aboard the yacht were Mr. Tolman and Thomas Green. Frank Coffin and Stanley Campbell of Boston left Belfast with Mr. Tolman on the yacht and cruised as far as Portland, coming the rest of the way by train.

The tug Piscataqua towed the Mallard to Kittery. The Mallard was bound for Boston.

MAY BREAK BRITISH CABINET

By PERCY THOMAS.
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A political sensation of the first magnitude was caused here today by the publication in the Daily News of an alleged plot on the part of a minority in the Cabinet to force conscription upon Great Britain during the present session of Parliament.

If the coterie of ministers favoring conscription fails in its fight, the Cabinet will be disrupted, the Daily News says.

The leaders of the pro-conscription group are given as Minister of Munitions, David Lloyd-George; A. Bonar Law, Secretary of State for the Colonies; Winston Churchill, Chancellor for the Duchy of Lancaster and former Lord of the Admiralty; Lord Curzon, the Lord of the Privy Seal, and Sir Edward Carson, the Attorney-General.

These leaders in the pro-conscription group have pledged themselves to resign from the government if their fight fails, according to the Daily News.

The Daily News is known as a radical newspaper and a supporter of the present Liberal government. It has always been an unswerving supporter of David Lloyd George while he was Chancellor of the Exchequer.

If present plans are carried out the leaders of the pro-conscriptionists will launch their big fight early next week. Premier Asquith and Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, have been ranked as opponents to conscription and they will probably lead the fight against the pro-conscriptionists.

"A government crisis such as would be precipitated by the resignation of the members of the government leading the pro-conscription campaign would be attended by great peril to the nation," says the Daily News.

"The indications are that the object of the conscriptionists is to force a general election upon the issue of conscription."

Baltic Passengers See U-Boat Attacked

SEIZURE IS FOUGHT BY PACKERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. — The American protest to Great Britain against her order in council interfering with American trade, and her action in placing cotton on the contraband list, was completed today.

Secretary Lansing stated, however, that the time for sending it forward was still held in abeyance. The secretary made it plain that the protest is as drastic as possible, and that it flatly declares that Great Britain has violated international law. He today submitted it to President Wilson for final approval.

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—All the American packers, whose products, valued at many millions of dollars, were yesterday declared by the British prize court forfeited to the crown, gave notice of appeal from the decision today. It is expected that the final legal steps will be expedited and that final judgment will be handed down as soon as possible.

The British press expresses confidence that the decision of the prize court will be upheld in the final judgment and that the findings of Sir Samuel T. Evans, president of the court, will be completely indorsed. The Times asserts that the decision was necessary, as a contrary judgment would have practically nullified the order in council declaring a blockade of Germany.

The same newspaper says that the prize court's decision was influenced by the decision of the American courts during the Civil War, being guided in large measure by the decisions of Chief Justice Chase and his colleagues with reference to British cargoes seized as contraband.

"The result, if adverse to American shippers, may be said to be a compliment to American jurisprudence," the Times concludes.

Other immense cargoes are held by the British government. It is supposed that the decision as to these will be withheld until the appeal of

U. S. and Mexican Troops in Battle on the Border

By International News Service.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 17. —Carranza soldiers at Matamoras and American soldiers engaged in a pitched battle across the Rio Grande today. The conflict was opened when the Mexicans fired upon American soil, apparently trying to kill a peace officer patrolling the American bank of the river. Their shots killed his horse, but he escaped and summoned United States cavalry to the scene.

The Mexicans broke for cover when the American troopers dashed to the river bank, but half an hour later they again appeared and fired several volleys at the Americans. After 500 bullets had fallen on the American side the troopers returned the fire.

Bangor Clew to Kidnaped Glass Child

Kidnaped from the Summer home of his parents in Pennsylvania several months ago, four-year-old James Douglas Glass of Jersey City is thought to have been located at Bangor, Me., through publicity secured by Mayor Curley in the Boston newspapers, according to a clew furnished the Mayor by Mrs. H. S. Wetzler of that city today.

Mrs. Wetzler wrote Mayor Curley for further particulars of the Glass child, saying she has strong reasons to believe that the boy was deserted in Bangor recently.

Mayor Curley forwarded Mrs. Wetzler a picture of the kidnaped child and notified the Jersey City police. A reward of $500 is offered for the child.

ZEPPELIN RAINS DEATH ON SUBURB FROM THE DARK

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—For twenty minutes on the night of Tuesday, September 7, a Zeppelin airship threw down shells upon Hadleigh, a suburb of London, in an effort to wipe the town off the earth.

Soaring slowly through the night sky in the blaze of searchlights, and while machine guns and high-angle guns directed a steady but ineffectual fire, the monster airship rained high-powered bombs upon the buildings and around five great tanks holding millions of gallons of gasoline.

Two other airships were bombarding other suburbs at the same time and all are believed to have escaped, despite the fire of the English guns and aeroplane patrols that rose to give battle to them.

Thrilling stories of the raid, which is believed to have cost the lives of more than a score of persons, were brought here on the White Star liner Baltic which arrived in port today fom Liverpool. One of the most graphic stories was told by A. J. Taylor, a resident of Hadleigh, who saw the bombardment.

While thousands of persons in the London suburb cowered in bomb-proof cellars and a few of the bolder climbed to the roofs to get a better view of the stirring night battle, the British metropolis was treated to such a sight as it had never seen before. Hadleigh is eleven miles from London proper.

STORY OF BOMBARDMENT.

"I was awakened about half past twelve o'clock at night by the jarring explosion of a bomb," declared Mr. Taylor.

"Immediately it was followed by more explosions and then the quick fattle of the machine guns broke out.

"Instantly I knew that we had been attacked by Zeppelins and I went forth to see the sight. The night was dark and it was pierced by flashes of light from below and above, giving us such an exhibition of fireworks as we had never seen before.

"Quickly shafts of light from the searchlights were turned skyward and there, hovering about three-quarters of a mile above the ground was the hostile visitor, soaring in lazy sweeps.

"Apparently all the lights on board had been put out to help the air sailors in dropping their missiles, but in the rays of searchlights I could see black objects falling and I knew they were bombs.

"The calmness and quiet of the

GERMANY WILL SATISFY U. S. ON ARABIC

By International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Sept. 17. —German newspapers were authorized today to announce that the government will give full satisfaction to the United States on the Arabic and Hesperian cases, and that within a short time the incidents will be closed.

The Cologne Gazette, commenting on the announcement, hinted that a financial mission would go to America, adding:

"Germany has the greatest possible interest in American finance. It must not be considered a sign of weakness if Germany within a week or two gives full satisfaction to Washington for the Hesperian and Arabic cases."

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 17.—A despatch from Berlin states that the German Foreign Office today handed to Ambassador Gerard a note which asserted that the attack by a submarine on the liner Orduna was made only because that steamer was trying to escape.

Groveland Bridge Damaged by Fire

HAVERHILL, Sept. 17.—The steel bridge which spans the Merrimac River between this city and Groveland was damaged by fire early today. The wooden flooring in the middle of the bridge was ablaze when firemen arrived from both Groveland and Haverhill. The fire is said to have been caused by faulty insulation of electric wires. After examination the bridge was again opened for traffic after the fire. It is a favorite route between the North Shore and the White Mountains.

AUSTRIA WARNS SUBJECTS IN ARMS PLANTS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 17.—An official warning to Austro-Hungarian subjects that death may be their penalty for aiding in the manufacture of munitions for the allies was published today in Austrian and Hungarian newspapers throughout Pennsylvania.

Baron Lother von Hauser, Austrian consul here, admitted it came from his office on instructions from Vienna and the Washington Austrian embassy.

The public notice of Consul von Hauser, preceded by a statement that was sent to him by the Austro-Hungarian embassy at Washington, is as follows:

"The imperial and royal foreign office has empowered the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian embassy that by this means they should inform all Austro-Hungarian subjects and also residents of Bosnia-Herzegovina, inasmuch as they are working in factories which are manufacturing guns and supplies for the enemy of their country which conflicts with the meaning of Section 327 of the Austro-Hungarian army laws where they become guilty of accessory of the fact of working against the armed strength of their country.

"This provides a penalty of ten to twenty years' imprisonment and where the circumstances warrant provides a death penalty. In case the subjects return to their country they make themselves liable to the severest punishment of the law."

First publication of the notice in this district was made in the Johnstown Hirado, Hungarian newspaper edited by the Rev. Ernest Pozsgai, pastor of the Hungarian Reformed Church at Cambria City.

FIRST STORY OF ZEPPELIN RAID OVER LONDON

Summer night was turned into a dreadful uproar and the darkness was illuminated with flare lights and the explosions of gunpowder.

"Some of the bombs dropped from the Zeppelin exploded before they reached the earth, scattering flashes of light in the sky and throwing weird flares of red and yellow over the town.

"The fragments of the shells rained upon the town.

"So high was the airship that we could not see the men on board, but its outline was visible. The shots from the land guns fell harmlessly away from it, or passed it without doing any harm.

TOWN'S LIGHTS OUT.

"All the lights in the town had been put out, but the flashes from the machine guns showed plainly enough where they were planted.

"The objective of the single Zeppelin that attacked Hadleigh and Enfield was evidently a number of tanks filled with millions of gallons of gasoline. If they had been struck all would have exploded and if we had not been blown up we would have been wiped out by fire. But fortunately these tanks escaped and after twenty minutes' shelling the big Zeppelin sailed away toward the east coast.

"The Germans always kept the nose of their biz ship headed toward the East so that they could take flight the moment aeroplanes soared aloft to attack them.

MACHINE GUNS HELPLESS.

"Some of the bombs fell in the field and did no more damage than to rip holes in the ground, but others shattered buildings, bringing death and wounds in their wake.

"For some time after the hostile visitor had departed, the machine guns kept pouring lead into the blackness of the sky in hope of hitting the air ship in the event it was maneuvering to a lower altitude.

"These air ships had evidently crossed the North Sea to a point near the mouth of the Thames and then followed the line of the London, South End-Tilbury railway as this is probably being guided by the lights of the trains passing towards London.

"These ships, as well as others that took part in air raids, flew very high and in absolute darkness. They were either guided by the charts of the officers or else by lights upon the ground below.

"In any event the Germans have shown themselves expert navigators of the air.

"There were three airships in the Zeppelin squadron that attacked us on the night of the 7th."

An officer of the Baltic declared that seventeen persons had been killed in the raid on September 7, and from thirty to fifty wounded, some of whom died later.

The Baltic brought forty-one first cabin passengers, 115 second-class passengers and fifty third-class passengers. There were two Americans on board.

POLAR EXPLORER STEFANSSON, NOW REPORTED SAFE

By International News Service.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the famous explorer believed to have been lost in the Arctic, is safe.

The Canadian government today announced the receipt of a dispatch from the explorer, stating that he was continuing his work in the Polar regions.

This dispatch was sent from Bankland, via Nome, Alaska, under date of August 31. This was the first time that Stefansson had been heard from since April 7, 1914. Because of his failure to report in the meantime it was believed he and the members of his expedition had perished.

News of Stefansson was carried to Nome by the schooner Ruby, which arrived from a cruise in Arctic regions. Banks Land lies seventy miles southwest of Melvin Island in the Arctic archipelago.

Stefansson's message, sent to the Naval Department, was as follows:

"An unavoidable delays threatened and the running cost of chartering Polar Bear was high, I purchased her and engaged her on terms similar to Karluk. Engaged Hog, engineer of schooner Ruby, to take place of Blue of Alaska. Engaged five extra helpers for northern parts who have ample outfit for one year, and Polar Bear for two years.

"Plan to continue northern exploration to 145 west and 82 farther north, if northerly course is pursued."

Stefansson had been engaged by the Canadian government to head an expedition for exploration in Arctic waters.

With the famous explorer when he left Martin Point in March, 1914, were Ole Anderson and Storker Storkerson, the party being well equipped with supplies and transportation accoutrements. Throughout the Summer trading schooners and whalers plying in northern waters kept a sharp lookout for Stefansson, but got no trace of him.

NOTABLES AT FUNERAL OF DINAND

Governor Walsh, Mayor Curley, a large number of clergy and hundreds of prominent laity attended the requiem mass said today at St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, for John Dinand, for forty years a member of the engineering staff of the city of Boston.

The celebrant of the mass was the Rev. John P. Dinand, S. J., president of Holy Cross College, a son of the deceased. Assisting Fr. Dinand in the mass were the Rev. Fr. Lyons, S. J., president of Boston College, and the Rev. Fr. Brock, S. J., sub-deacon. Rev. M. J. Derby was master of ceremonies.

In the large number of priests seated in the sanctuary were the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Roman, P. R., of St. Peter's, Rev. Fr. Lehy, S. J., Rev. Dr. John J. McCoy of St. Ann's, Worcester, and Rev. E. J. Fitzgerald of Clinton.

The pallbearers were: J. Mitchel Galvin, Andrew Houghton, Charles Logue, Frank A. Stout, John E. Riley, Thomas O'Callaghan.

RELIEF FROM HEAT IS DUE TOMORROW

Nevertheless, the hospitals reported a number of prostrations during the early hours, and there was one death in Peabody. The three hot days had sapped the vitality of the average Boston dweller, and even the lower temperatures today was oppressive and worked a hardship, particularly in the crowded quarters.

LOWER TEMPERATURE.

The temperatures from dawn today were four or five degrees below yesterday's figures. Five o'clock was 73, four degrees lower. Six o'clock was 72, also four degrees lower. Seven o'clock was 75, against 77 yesterday, and eight, nine and ten were four, five and four degrees cooler, respectively.

The humidity today was normal at 70. Yesterday the figure was 80.

A twelve-mile westerly wind in the early morning today dropped to an eight or nine-mile gait by noon, but still brought some measure of comfort.

All city laborers in the public works department, excepting the street watering force, were given a half-holiday without loss of pay because of the excessive heat, by orders of Commissioner Murphy as approved by Mayor Curley today.

This half-holiday privilege extends to some 1,500 city employes.

A group of high school boys waited on Mayor Kearns of Waltham today and asked him to close the schools for the rest of the week on account of the heat.

The Mayor said he had no authority and directed them to the School Committee, but the boys went back to school.

Officially the Waltham schools are not closed. Superintendent Parkinson told the boys that they would not escape the heat by going outside, but he said he would make it so that their studies would be as easy as possible during the hot spell.

DEATH IN PEABODY.

Peabody reported a death early today. Jeremiah Clifford died at the Thomas Hospital there. Clifford, a fireman at the Newell & Knowlton plant at Peabody, yesterday drank two glasses of ice-water and dropped in his tracks. He was taken to the hospital and never recovered consciousness before his death today. He lived at No. 81 Bosford court, Peabody.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the year, and the suffering was widespread.

Fourteen deaths attributed to heat were reported in New England, four of them in Boston. More than thirty were prostrated in Boston, and incomplete reports from the rest of New England indicate twice as many more. New England was not alone; in New York city, seven deaths were reported yesterday.

The thunder storm that tantalized Boston with its sound of distant thunder and an occasional flash of far-off lightning, affected the temperature but slightly, even in those places it visited. Sweeping over Reading, Wakefield and then over Beverly and along the North Shore and out to sea, this storm was the most severe of the year.

Anti-Curley Men Pass Out 'Recall' Cigars

Anti-Curley politicians peddling out cigars wrapped with a yellow band, on which is printed the word "Recall" in black script, today are being searched for by the officers of Boston Cigarmakers' Union, who allege that the cigars in question are non-union made.

The use of these cigars by the anti-Curley forces, labor leaders assert, is a direct affront to organized labor, because they were made in an out-of-town, non-union factory. And this without taking sides in the recall fight.

Henry Abrahams, secretary of both the Cigarmakers' Union and the Central Labor Union, today declared those passing out the "Recall" cigars will be investigated. If necessary, he said the C. L. U. itself would be asked to make an issue of the new recall move at the next meeting of that organization.

Bryan to Lead Small Army and Navy Cohorts

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—William Jennings Bryan today accepted the leadership of the opponents of increased expenditures for the army and navy. He went squarely on record as opposing the plans of the National Defence League and the Navy League for a better army and navy, and declared that he would fight these plans to a finish.

He refused to state whether this decision would go so far as to fight such increases if advocated by President Wilson, but left little doubt that this would be his intention.

Griffin Is Guilty of theft of Auto

John H. Griffin, proprietor of Maplewood Inn, Braintree, pleaded guilty in the Central Police Court today to a charge of stealing an automobile of the Cobb, Bates and Yerxa Company from Massachusetts avenue, July 16. Griffin was placed on probation and will make restitution. He claimed to have received the machine from two men for board.

GIRL PUNISHED, TRIES TO KILL HERSELF

Carmella Stormelli, a fourteen-year-old East Boston girl, shot herself today with her father's revolver, in her home at No. 149 Cottage street.

She was hurried to the East Boston Relief Station, and is expected to recover. The bullet entered the right side of her chest.

She told the police she shot herself because her father last night punished her for coming home later than he had told her to.

The building was 150 feet long and 75 feet wide, and in it were stored tons of unadulterated agricultural phosphate, from which commercial fertilizer is made.

That nobody was injured or killed is considered fortunate, as a number of fishermen tie up their boats at the wharf on which the building was built. No boats were in when the building toppled.

Austria Expected to Recall Dumba

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Austrian advices dated last Tuesday reached the State Department from Ambassador Penfield at Vienna today. It was rumored that they outlined the reply of the Austrian government to the demand of the United States that Ambassador Dumba be recalled, and that the American ambassador explained that Austria would agree to that action. Officials of the department declined to discuss the dispatches, but the fact that Secretary of State Lansing immediately arranged for a conference with President Wilson lent color to the belief that the Dumba incident was about ended.

DOG, MADDENED BY HEAT, BITES LYNN WOMAN

A woman, whose name was not learned, was bitten and scores of workmen climbed trees and telegraph poles when a maddened dog dashed through a crowd of people on their way to work on Essex street, Lynn, early today.

The dog, an Irish terrier, was first seen near the Bartlett-Rowland factory. He was coming down the street and running from side to side, snapping at every one he passed. Finally he attacked the woman and fastened his teeth in her knee.

Thomas L. Mahoney of No. 2 Rogers avenue went to her rescue but the dog turned on him and as he had no weapon, Mahoney was forced to climb a tree. Then the dog continued on his course and disappeared.

Friends took the woman away before the police arrived. The police are searching for the dog, which is believed to have been maddened by the heat.

MISS CONWAY OF AMERICAN STAFF DEAD

Among the heavy cost today of the heat wave was the life of Miss Elizabeth F. Conway at the age of twenty-one years.

She was the younger of two daughters of Police Inspector and Mrs. Edward T. Conway of No. 6 Adelaide street, Jamaica Plain. For nearly two years she had been on the reportorial staff of the Boston AMERICAN, collecting and writing social news for the Sunday department.

She leaves a sister, Miss Mary Conway, and a brother, John E. Conway. The latter is connected with the AMERICAN staff.

Miss Conway worked Wednesday, but felt the heat so yesterday that she remained at home. She became worse through the day. Her heart was not strong. She passed peacefully away at 1 o'clock today.

She was born in Roxbury and was graduated from the Dilloway Grammar and Roxbury High Schools.

Miss Conway was blessed with a particularly blithe and sunny temperament. This, combined with quick perceptions and a fine, wholesome attitude toward life, made her a most engaging girl.

It came as a shock to her social and working associates today that so bright a life could have to be so brief.

GERALDINE FARRAR, Melrose opera singer, who comes here today to build up musical score for the photo-play, "Carmen."

Geraldine Farrar is expected to arrive in Boston today and will begin at once her studies of the musical score which will be sat around the big photo-play, "Carmen," in which she will appear in Symphony Hall on October 1.

The musical portion of the program in Miss Farrar's especial care. Carmen is an opera with one of the most stirring scores ever written and a big orchestra of fifty pieces has been engaged to play this music during the performance.

The photo-play, however, does not follow the opera closely. All the big scenes of the opera are in it and many scenes which operatic requirements would not permit. Thus the orchestra cannot start at the first bar of Carmen and play it all the way through and be in tune with the picture. Miss Farrar knows every note of the score of "Carmen" and intends to personally see that each melody is properly fitted to the screen.

HELD IN $5,000 FOR BACK BAY BREAK

George Johnson, who claims a residence at No. 24 Washington street, New York city, and who was arrested after an exciting chase on Newbury street, Back Bay, during which shots were fired, early today, appeared in court before Judge Sullivan, who held him for trial in $5,000.

The police told the court that Johnson was an old-timer and that he was now out on parole on one charge and out on bail on another charge of burglary. Besides attempting to burglarize the residence of Mrs. Blanche A. Baxter at No. 178 Newbury street, near where he was captured, the police say he also entered the "flat" house of Delia Tau Delta at No. 234 Newbury street, and stole jewelry worth $150 from four students, L. S. Noyes, George Fuller, Kingston Cass and Leroy Gross.

Johnson was captured through the wakefulness of Miss Helen Williams of No. 175 Newbury street. She heard someone cutting the screen on the window. She awakened Mrs. Baxter, who called the police on the telephone.

The auto-patrol from the Back Bay station was hurried to the house with Patrolmen Delaney, Connor and Burns on board.

Meantime Miss Williams and Mrs. Baxter went to the former's room and watched the man as he continued work at the screen. As he finally tore it away and started to enter Mrs. Baxter suddenly stepped forward.

"What do you want here?" she demanded.

Without reply the man leaped to the ground and ran for the street, reaching it just as the police auto appeared. At sight of the officers the man turned and darted toward Exeter street.

With drawn revolvers, the officers started in pursuit, calling on the man to halt. Their cries, however, went unheeded.

He turned into Exeter street, crossed Boylston and turned into Blagden street.

He refused to heed the warnings of the police, who threatened to shoot if he did not surrender.

When the officers saw that the man was determined to make his escape, they fired two shots in the air. When the burglar heard the reports of the revolver, he suddenly stopped and was taken back to the scene of the attempted burglary. Upon investigation, the police found that the screen had been partially cut from the window with a jackknife. The space which had been opened afforded an entrance for a man's body.

It is believed that he was just about to enter the building when he heard the auto patrol approaching the scene. He has been booked on a charge of attempting breaking and entering.

GOVERNOR HEARS KNOWLES CASE PROTEST

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 17.—Sheriff Andrew J. Wilcox of Providence County and Horace G. Knowles, brother of Judge Willis S. Knowles, who was assassinated on Labor Day, held secret conference with Governor R. Livingston Beeckman today.

The sheriff and the brother came before the Governor to seek State backing for the sheriff in his investigation of the Knowles murder.

Horace G. Knowles accompanied the sheriff to the conference with Governor eBeckman to make his personal protest against the present mode of investigation.

Horace Knowles today denounced the police methods and the political methods which he claims have retarded the inquiry and helped the assassin to elude justice twelve days.

Hughes, manager for a food house near the home of Judge Knowles, was examined yesterday by Assistant-Attorney A. A. Capotosto in the office of Sheriff Wilcox. A stenographic transcript of his testimony was taken.

Hughes was examined the previous evenings by inspectors A'Hearn and Godfrey at the Crown Hotel and then reported to Chief Inspector O'Neil that the man was intoxicated. Reporters and others who interviewed him agreed that he was not.

In order that Hughes' evidence would not be stifled the reporters who discovered him escorted him to the sheriff's office. There, in the presence of Sheriff Wilcox, Attorney-General Capotosto, who examined him; three newspapermen and the some inspectors who had interviewed him the night before. Hughes repeated his story with even greater emphasis.

SUSPECT TELEPHONED TO.

In spite of the apparent lukewarmness of the police, the story told by Hughes caused the officials to renew activities in the town of Johnston today. In fact, a suspect was telephoned to by a Providence police official, who asked him to come to the city, but he refused, on the plea that he was too busy.

Hughes claimed he was threatened with violence and that he was knocked senseless with a cuspidor in the dark three nights after the murder of Judge Knowles. After returning to the resort Wednesday evening he was again assaulted and a large cash made over his left eye by a man that called him a "stool pigeon."

Hughes furnished names to the State authorities of men whom he said would corroborate him on essential parts of his story. He gave the names of David Galvin, James Ferry and several others.

Bathing Suits and Garden Hose at Lawn Party

Mrs. Thomas Harney of Salem holds the medal in that city today, on account of her "keep cool" party.

At her invitation fifty women and children of her neighborhood gathered on the broad lawn of her home at No. 79 Proctor street, in bathing costumes.

The children wore one-piece suits. The elders were more conservative, of course, but all were delightfully comfortable.

Several lines of garden hose were kept busy.

Children shrieked with laughter, and dignified matrons had fun turning the hose streams on their companions.

Ice cream and iced drinks were served.

The mercury did its worst, but nobody cared.

E. C. MARSHALL RE-ARRESTED FOR SHOOTING

Edward C. Marshall, against whom a charge of shooting his twenty-year-old bride, Edna E. Marshall, was dismissed last February after she insisted it was accidental, was arrested today in connection with the same shooting and charged with intent to murder.

The new charge was made by Mrs. Marshall herself, in addition to another serious charge. Marshall pleaded not guilty to both charges in the Roxbury court, and was held in $2,000 bonds for a hearing Sept. 22.

Mrs. Marshall was taken to the City Hospital January 15 last with a bullet wound in her side, received while she and her husband were in their apartment at No. 15 Bickerstaff street, Back Bay. They had been married only four months.

The police arrested Marshall, charging that the shot which struck Mrs. Marshall had been fired by him through the door of a bathroom in which she had taken refuge, following a quarrel.

When Mrs. Marshall had recovered sufficiently to appear in court she declared the shooting was accidental, and she and her husband left the court room arm in arm.

Somerville Man Shocked to Death in Parrot Chase

Donald N. MacKenzie, thirty-eight, of No. 16 Eastman road, Somerville, was killed by a live electric wire in sight of his wife and two children, while trying to recover his wife's sister's runaway parrot in an elm tree.

His death was witnessed by a crowd which stood horrified as the electric flashes played around his body, as it lay across the wire in the tree.

His sister-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Joyce, recently came to the MacKenzie home for a visit, and she brought her pet parrot with her. The parrot escaped and took refuge in a tall elm tree at Cedar street and Aberdeen road, several blocks away.

When MacKenzie reached his home he was told what had happened, and went to his paint shop and got a ladder. Just as he was about to seize the bird it jumped to another limb of the tree, where the ladder would not quite reach. MacKenzie stepped upon a limb of the tree and reached for the parrot. His foot slipped and he fell across the live electric wire, while his feet were held in the crotch of the tree.

Mrs. Isham Denies Story of Divorce

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A newspaper report that Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heyward Isham have separated and that a divorce is contemplated was indignantly denied today. Mrs. Isham, before her marriage last year, when she was sixteen years old, was Miss Marion Gaynor, daughter of the late Mayor Gaynor.

"That story is absolutely false," declared Mrs. W. Seward Webb, sister of Mrs. Isham. Mrs. Isham also denied it.

PACKERS FIGHT SEIZURE BY BRITAIN

the American packers on the present case is decided.

CHICAGO ATTORNEYS TO GO TO WASHINGTON TO PROTEST SEIZURE

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Two Chicago attorneys will go to Washington Monday, to lay before Secretary of State Lansing the contentions of the Chicago packers who stand to lose millions of dollars as the result of the British prize court decision ordering the confiscation of American meat products seized on their way to neutral ports.

The legal representatives of the company will demand that Secretary Lansing take the matter up with England through diplomatic channels.

The contention of the legal representatives of the packers who will go to Washington next week will be that England's action is a violation of international law and an intrusion of "freedom of seas" principle which President Wilson has made the subject of recent diplomatic notes.

"The prize court decision must throw cold water on the loan so far as this territory is concerned," said H. G. Hulbert, vice president of the Merchants' Loan & Trust Company.

"Regardless of any action the packers might take or any attitude they might assume, the bankers here feel that such confiscation is an unjustifiable and high-handed proceeding.

"It would be poor logic to send cash to England when our products are being seized, making a complete loss of the business we are trying to finance. That sort of thing will not be tolerated."

John R. Arnold, vice president of the First National Bank, did not wish to discuss the matter in detail, but said confiscation must necessarily lessen the possibility of general participation in the loan by Western bankers.

If the confiscation of meat cargoes is upheld, Chicago packers will lose approximately $15,000,000, as no advance payments were made, according to T. E. Wilson, president of Morris & Co. The packers, however, have not yet given up the fight.

Attorneys Henry Veeder, C. J. Faulkner, Jr., and M. W. Borders, representing Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and Morries & Co., have made a joint attement of protest.

Henry Veeder, of counsel for Swift & Co., said that the contentions of the packers would be pushed as much as possible.

"Probably we shall appeal," he said. "Just what action we shall take to obtain further assistance from Washington cannot be stated at present. The packers must first confer."

Guy C. Shepard, vice-president of the Cudahy Packing Co., which escaped with slight loss, said his company proved that its shipments had been bought outright by Danish merchants.

C. J. Faulkner, Jr., of the legal staff of Armour & Co., said:

"I don't see how England can justify that decision. The goods shipped on three of the four ships involved were sent before the England order-in-council was issued. We could not stop the shipments when the order did come out. They were on the ocean."

CONSUL-GENERAL SKINNER EXPLAINS SEIZURE REASONS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The British prize court ordered the confiscation of the $15,000,000 worth of American meat products chiefly because the American packers declined to accept the British construction of law that placed the burden of proof on the shipper instead of the government, according to a dispatch from Consul General Skinner at London to the State Department today.

The consul general, in confirming the text of the decision, said:

"It was based largely on the refusal of the claimants to accept the burden of proof and demonstrate the innocent destinations of the cargoes.

It was learned that in so doing the packers simply followed the suggestion of the United States. It is claimed in the American attitude that the attempt to place the burden of proof of the innocent nature of any cargo whether of contraband or non-contraband on the shipper, the allies are trying to write a new principle into the accepted international law.

This the United States is as determined to resist as strongly as it has resisted the attempt of the German admiralty to re-construe existing law to aid its submarine campaign.

The attitude of this government is that the law as it existed prior to August 1, 1914, is the only law that can be applied to anything affecting neutrals in the present war. As enunciated by President Wilson himself some months ago:

"We cannot consent to any changes in the game while it is going on."

GERMANS CROSS PETROGRAD RAILWAY

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has driven a wedge between the Russian troops defending Dvinsk and those defending Vilna.

German troops have crossed the Petrograd-Warsaw railway and captured the town of Widzy, eighteen miles east of the railroad.

In addition to announcing that Widzy has been taken, today's report from the General Staff states that other forces of Von Hindenburg, together with the troops of Field Marshal Prince Leopold of Bavaria, have crossed the Schtschara River, a confluent of the Niemen, just to the eastward of which runs the main railway line from Vilna to Rovno.

In the western theatre the General Staff also reports successes, stating that a trench section held by the French in Champagne had been captured.

J. J. HILL, ON 77TH BIRTHDAY, TELLS OF LOAN PLANS

James J. Hill, "Empire Builder" and railway millionaire of the Northwest, posed especially for the Boston AMERICAN at his desk in the Chamber of Commerce Building, New York, on his seventy-seventh birthday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—James J. Hill was seventy-seven years old yesterday. His birthday and the progress of the billion dollar loan to the allies were closely associated, for Mr. Hill devoted an important part of the day to conferencing that were looked upon as significant and turned the birthday felicitations of his interviewers into explanations of the vital importance of this loan to the prosperity of the country.

"My health? It couldn't be better," he said. "You see, I am living on borrowed time. I'm seven years above the allotted figure, and I'm going to keep on piling up that borrowed time as long as I possibly can.

"Did I work all day? I did not. It was much too hot. I did not get downtown until 11 o'clock, and I had luncheon soon afterward with my son."

A heap of telegrams and letters of congratulations was piled on Mr. Hill's desk in his room at the Great Northern offices, 13 Nassau street. The telephone had been busy all day with other congratulations, and there had been many visitors.

The visit that awakened most interest in Wall Street was that of Jacob H. Schiff. It is believed in the financial district that the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is considering the advisability of joining in the syndicate that will finance the loan, and that through James J. Hill the delicate matter of the participation of the firm is being discussed.

Both Mr. Schiff and Mr. Hill refused to admit that the call had any international loan significance.

"I merely dropped in to congratulate Mr. Hill on his birthday," said the banker. "I haven't missed seeing him on such an occasion in forty years."

In his talks on the loan yesterday, Mr. Hill made it plain that his efforts would be for a loan that was as far from a war loan as it could be made. He said he did not anticipate that German bankers would be kept from participation in it on that score.

"This loan is not a war loan," he said.

"My sole interest in this loan is in the interest of the farmer, who with the wealth of his production is the backbone of the nation. We have a crop this year worth more than $10,000,000,000, more than the production of all the gold mines in the world for twenty years. This loan is necessary to stabilize the pound sterling so this country will not at any time have to pay the discount."

Mr. Hill said he did not look for any great wave of prosperity immediately, even if the loan were arranged and the exchange rate stabilized, but what he did see was that the country would get what its crops were worth as a result of the loan.

BONDS WILL BE FIRST LIEN ON ALLIES

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Here is the present status of the Anglo-French loan negotiations. It can be authoritatively stated the total amount wanted is $750,000,000.

The principal loan may be one of only $500,000,000.

The yield to the public will be 5 per cent, but of course the cost to the European governments will be larger, since all banking commissions will have to be paid by the borrowers.

The bonds, as in the case of all government issues, will not be secured by pledged collateral, but by a first lien, so to speak, on all the assets of the two nations.

The bonds will not all run for the same number of years, as repayment of so huge a sum at one time would be calculated to gravely upset international—that is foreign—exchanges. The first maturity may be five years from date of issue, perhaps five-fifth being paid off annually thereafter, although this proposed arrangement may yet be changed.

Distribution of the greater part of the entire offering has already been arranged, it was stated, by inside interests.

Successful negotiations are expected to be carried through to have such powerful houses as Kuhn, Loeb & Company and J. & W. Seligman join the flotation, as these interests regard the loan as imperatively necessary for the preservation of prosperity in America's business and American agriculture.

Jacob H. Schiff, when asked if the report was true that he had written a letter condemning the proposed "billion dollar loan," said:

"The report is not true. It is false. I never wrote any such letter."

Further than to make this emphatic denial, Mr. Schiff would not discuss any phase of the loan negotiations.

The commissioners, working for the most part individually, met a number of bank and trust company presidents in addition to Mr. Morgan and other members of the Morgan firm.

Gratification was expressed over the sentiment revealed throughout the country revealed by newspaper dispatches and privately.

"The response has been more than promising," was how one member of the Commission phrased it.

French Airmen Beat Austrians Over Adriatic

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—The French Ministry of Marine today announced the defeat of an Austrian aerial squadron above the Adriatic by French aviators. The Austrian aeroplanes were supported by small warships.

The following report was issued by the Ministry of Marine:

"Our squadron of hydro-aeroplanes at Port Said has bombarded the Sidi-Heidere bridge, which constitutes an important passage.

"Another portion of our hydro-aeroplane squadron in the Adriatic has engaged in numerous combats with Austrian machines, which were supported by small warships carrying anti-air craft guns.

"These combats were ended by the retreat of the Austrian aviators."

ARTILLERY DUELS CONTINUE ALONG THE FRENCH FRONT

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Today's communique from the French War Office reports that the artillery duel between the French and German forces continued at several points on the front during the night.

The text of the communique follows:

"In Artois, between Angres and Souchez, and to the south of Arras, our batteries replying to the enemy's fire violently shelled his workers' and victualling establishments.

Between the Somme and the Aisne, rifle firing from trench to trench was the principal, as well as some activity by heavy German artillery, to which we replied energetically.

"In the region of Sapigneul and between the Aisne and the Argonne, the conflict with artillery and bombs continued during [illegible] of the night.

"There is nothing to report on the rest of the front."

Announce Death of Cardinal Lorenzelli

FLORENCE, Italy, Sept. 17.—The death is announced of Cardinal Benedetto Lorenzelli, Archbishop of Lucca and prefect of the Congregation of Studies. He was created a cardinal in 1907. For three years he represented the Vatican at The Hague and later at Munich, and was the Nuncio at Paris before the breaking of diplomatic relations between the French government and the Vatican. He was sixty-two years old.

LEAVE TRENT AS ITALIANS MAKE NEW GAINS

By International News Service.

ROME, Sept. 17.—The few remaining civilians in Trent have been ordered out by the Austrian military authorities as a result of the new gains of the Italians in their campaign against the capital of Trentino. Italian aviators report a steady exodus from the city.

The evacuation of Rovereto by the Austrians is now complete. Many non-combatants in Trentino are being shot by the Austrian military authorities without being tried, for espionage.

In the upper Geneva Valley, fighting, which resulted favorably to the Italians, has taken place 10,000 feet in the air upon the craggy peaks of Cresta and Villa Cerna.

On the Isonzo front the Austrians are using bombs filled with prussic acid.

Drive Catarrh Germs From Nose and Throat

Only Way to Really End Catarrh Is to Destroy the Germs Causing It.

The germs of catarrh breed, thrive and multiply by the million far up in the air passages of the nose, throat and lungs of every catarrh victim. You cannot get rid of the disease until you get rid of the germs.

You can't kill germs with ointments or lotions or blood purifiers.

There is just one safe, sensible and invariably reliable way to reach and destroy catarrh germs and thus relieve catarrh forever. Breathe into your nose, throat and lungs the medicated, healing, piney air of Hyomei which is made from the pure, healing oil of Eucalyptus combined with powerful germicidal ingredients which are certain death to every catarrh germ they reach. The air of Hyomei breathed deeply is so penetrating it reaches into every nook, corner and crevice of your nose, throat and lungs where germs can possibly hide or breed. It can easy treatment. You'll like the pleasant Hyomei odor and effect is pleasant to everyone but the microbes making germs themselves. They don't like it, simply can't stand it and are completely driven from your body, taking Catarrh itself with them. Hyomei is a standard preparation recognized by physicians and druggists everywhere. It is so well thought of here that Riker Jaynes Drug Stores and many other leading druggists in this vicinity sell it with an absolute guarantee of successful cure or money back. No catarrh sufferer therefore assumes any risk in giving it a trial. Tear this out of the paper now and show it to your druggist as you ask for Hyomei. Be sure to ask him for the complete Hyomei outfit which contains an inhaler device which is very necessary to use to get the best results.—Advertisement.

Take Lime for Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 17, 1915, Page 206), Dr. C. F. Disen, of Minneapolis, holds that a "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis, "and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis."

One of the reasons for the widespread success of Sanatogen in the treatment of tuberculosis is its ability to supply this deficiency. It contains a lime salt in such combination with other valuable agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person. Many cases seem to have yielded to it.

We make no exaggerated claims for it, but prefer that it be tried on the same basis as any other prescription, and since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe. Sold by all leading Drug Stores and leading druggists.

67 GIRLS HAVE ENTERED FOR SWIM

The public is invited to one of the biggest, best and prettiest swimming events of the country tomorrow afternoon.

This is the Boston AMERICAN'S eleventh annual race for girls for the swimming championship of New England.

The race will take place in the famous Charles River basin.

The start will be promptly at 2:15 o'clock. At that minute the fair contestants will dive together from the big float of the Metropolitan Park Commission on the Boston side of the basin, near the Union Boat club.

The race is absolutely safe. It is a splendid, thrilling spectacle and it doesn't cost a cent to look at it.

The broad esplanade that lines the basin and the Harvard Bridge which spans it form ideal places from which to watch the entire race. These vantage points will accommodate tens of thousands of spectators. That is good, for many thousands always turn out to see this event.

THOUSANDS TO SEE RACE.

Friends and backers of the many contestants make up quite a gallery alone.

Then there are thousands of spectators who are keen on swimming events, even though they may not know any of the contestants.

In addition to these there are thousands more who like any outdoor contest and who are drawn yearly in ever increasing numbers, by the fame of the Boston AMERICAN'S race for girls.

The entry list has closed with sixty-seven entries.

Think of sixty-seven girls starting at the same time in a swimming race for the championship of the six New England States.

There is an extra attraction this year. This is the addition of a three-mile men's swimming race for the open championship of New England. It is under the auspices of the N. E. A. A. U. It will start at 2 o'clock. Fifteen minutes later, when the men are on their way for their stake boat one and one-half miles away, the girls will start on their shorter course in the AMERICAN'S race.

FIVE PRIZES OFFERED.

There are many splendid swimmers entered for the girls' race this year.

Marian Gibson will be there to defend her title. She has won the last four races. This Dorchester girl has shown remarkable powers of speed and endurance.

There are five prizes for this race. In addition to Marian Gibson there are three more of last year's prize winners who will compete this year.

These girls and the order in which they finished last year are: Madeline Tonely of South Boston, third; Mildred Wyman of Brookline, fourth, Mary McArdle of South Boston, fifth.

Each will try for higher honor this year.

But there are many other girls in the race. Some are known to be steady. For instance, Irene Demers of Ludlow won the four-mile race for girls at Springfield. She is reputed cut Ludlow and Springfield way to be lightning fast in the water.

RACE WILL BE FAST.

Miss Demers or some other out-of-town girl may capture the first prize this year. But the Boston girls say that they will have to travel like water wizards to do it.

There is much speculation as to time. The course is one and one-half miles and 200 feet. Last year Marian Gibson did it in 58 minutes and 2 seconds. But the year before she made the same course in the wonderful time of 42 minutes and 14 seconds.

The course is well known to the swimmers and public. Starting from the Metropolitan Park Police float, the contestants swim upstream to the stake boat anchored just below the Harvard Bridge. The swimmers pass the boat on their left and return downstream to the start.

Every arrangement will be made for the comfort and safety of the swimmers. There will be a Red Cross tent near the float, with physicians, nurses and pulmotor.

WELL-KNOWN OFFICIALS.

The swimming course will be patrolled by swift power launches of the Metropolitan Park Police. These will keep the course clear.

An efficient corps of lifesavers, under John J. (Muffin) Flaherty, will follow the contestants in rowboats. The lifesavers and the police will cooperate to prevent accidents.

The officials, who have been announced, are members of the N. E. A. A. U. and are known for their skill in handling big water events. It will be a fair field and no favor from the start.

The Metropolitan Park Police handles the esplanade crowds at these races, as well as helping on the parkways. Under instruction of Superintendent Herbert West, Lieutenant Albert Chapman will have the usual competent detail of men on hand tomorrow.

LIST OF ENTRIES.

Here are the names of the entries to date:

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you have a cold right in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Ensenol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

BAR EVIDENCE ABOUT WOMAN IN SPY CASE

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 17.—During testimony in the case of Nicholas K. Card, the Newport fisherman accused of trespassing on Rose Island, a government reservation, United States Commissioner Healy ruled that no evidence would be admitted bearing on the "woman in the case."

Card was found probably guilty and held in $2,000 for the November Grand Jury.

A woman was in Card's boat at the time he landed on the island. He has said she was Mrs. Jennie Meyers of Newport. Mrs. Meyers was in the office of the district attorney today. She denies she was in the boat. Commissioner Healy said the trial of Card would be confined to the question of whether he was on the island.

As a result of Card's arrest, there have been rumors of spy activities, centring in Newport, with a wealthy baroness at their head.

Chief Gunner Roderick M. O'Connor was the first witness today. He told of seeing a man on the island—Rose Island, where high explosives are stored—and of ordering him off. He identified Card as the man. He testified there were prominent signs forbidding trespassing. The charge against Card is trespass.

George E. Bowman and Harry Somers, attached to the island, corroborated O'Connor, and Mrs. Christina Curtis, wife of the keeper of the lighthouse on the island, said she had never seen Card before, and denied having given him a box of matches, as he claims.

Asks Receiver for K. of H. Grand Lodge

Oliver S. Hayward today asked the Superior Court to appoint a receiver to take charge of the funds of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Knights of Honor, and to sell the property of subordinate lodges and to hold the proceeds for the benefit of Massachusetts members. Hayward declares a receiver for the Supreme Lodge was appointed at St. Louis a week ago, and that this receiver might soon demand Massachusetts lodge property for the Supreme Lodge. Hayward is a member of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge and of Lodge No. 1226.

Open New Ward 17 Building Monday

Mayor Curley today announced that the Ward 17 Municipal Building will be opened on Monday night, that James M. Curley, Jr., is scheduled to officiate at the flag-raising; that John Dwyer and Francis L. Daly would preside at the two new halls in which he, the Mayor, would address the voters of Ward 17, and that Former-Mayor Fitzgerald was not on he list f invited guests.

Athlete Rescues 2 Boys from River

Rufus Bond, a former Everett High School football player, saved two lads from drowning last night in the Malden River.

The rescued boys were Bernard Malone, 12, and Daniel J Torper, 13. Torper had tried to save Malone, and both boys were sinking when Bond ran to their rescue.

Woman Fined in Non-Support Case

Mrs. Sarah Grady of No. 21 Linden avenue, Somerville, was today fined $30 in the South Boston court on a charge of refusing to support her father Martin, seventy-four, who is living with a niece at No. 74 Woodard street, South Boston. Mrs. Grady appealed and was held in $200.

Legal Cost Halts Graustein Case

The case of Ida Graustein against the Boston & Maine Railroad on account of the increase in railroad rates came up for a hearing today, but was indefinitely postponed. W. A. Graustein, husband of the plaintiff, said he was not ready to go on "because of the high cost of lawyers."

BANKER BURTON IS ACCUSED BY HUB WOMAN

The name of a Boston woman was brought into the troubles of the Ansonia, Ct., savings bank today, when the automobiles of Treasurer Franklin Burton, who is alleged to have embezzled $56,000 from the bank, were attached for $5,000 on behalf of Nora A. McElvenny of Boston. She claims that Treasurer Burton has appropriated bonds of the Connecticut Railway Lighting Company, which he held in trust for her.

Treasurer Burton appeared in court today charged with embezzlement. His case was continued and he was released under bonds of $10,000. The bank today is under a police guard of eighty men. When the trouble of the bank became known several thousands depositors stormed the bank in an attempt to get their money.

Burton is one of the most prominent men in the State. He is a former State Senator and has twice been Mayor of the city. The directors of the bank today issued a statement that the bank is solvent, and that the surplus and treasurer's bond is ample to cover any shortage.

DILLON ACTS IN ALLEGED BATH ASSAULT

Chairman John H. Dillon of the Park and decreation Department today announced that he would investigate the conduct of Henry H. Griffin, superintendent of the L street bathhouse, who it is charged kicked and struck Johann M. Thal, a bather, after an altercation on the beach.

Griffin was brought into the South Boston court on a charge of assault, but the case was filed. Benjamin F. McCoy and H. H. Crawford, the latter a Harvard student, testified to the assault.

"I will make a thorough investigation," said Chairman Dillon today. "I shall look into the Griffin case and I feel sure that the general public will be satisfied with my disposition of the matter.

"Mr. Griffin's position is one of some responsibility. He has to handle great crowds on hot days. Also there is a large element that comes early and stays all day, lolling on the sand, thus preventing others from enjoying the bathhouse.

"Griffin is a stern man, but he certainly exceeded his authority and was in the wrong if he kicked or struck Thal.

"Mr. Griffin has made the beach an orderly place, but if he gives way in this fashion, he will only invite rioters and bring a rowdy element to the bathhouse, who will delight in attacking the employes.

"I have under consideration plans to eliminate 'Beach Hogs' who come early and spend the day, depriving others of the opportunity for a swim. One idea is to issue pink tights the first hour, blue the second, white the third. At the beginning of the third hour bathers in pink tights, who would thus be shown to have been in the water over an hour, would be required to leave.

"Also, I hope to have uniformed officers on duty on busy days hereafter to prevent the necessity for such incidents as this."

Two Steamers Detained.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The American tank steamer Muskogee, from New Orleans for Gothenburg, and the Danish steamer Polarstjernen, from Baltimore for Gothenburg, have been detained by the British authorities.

Boys Find No Ice Cream Well in Scollay Sq.

It was a mean trick anyway. Think of it: hiking all the way from Cherry Valley to Scollay square to find an ice cream well and tonic pool. And on such a hot day, too.

Little seven-year-old John Hoban of No. 150 Blue Hill avenue, and his eight-year-old chum Charles Strickhardt of No. 24 Julian street, Roxbury, are today as full of disgust as they hoped to be of ice cream.

It happened this way: Both boys had heard that in Scollay square in this city there could be found an ice cream well and a tonic pond. Several of the older "guys" had told them of these two great soons, and ergo they decided to go out and search for them.

So they started on foot for Scollay square. They reached the square but Patrolman Fox, station one, met them, and instead of getting a chance to delight themselves in the well and pond they went to the station house.

Shortly after midnight Joseph Hoban, a brother of the younger boy, came to the station house and claimed the two explorers.

Ex-Treasurer of Holbrook Arrested

George B French, former treasurer of the town of Holbrook, was arrested today and arraigned in the Dedham District Court. He is charged with the larceny of $12,000 from the town.

He was secretly indicted by the Grand Jury last Thursday.

The news that French, who is over seventy years old, was suspected of misappropriating town funds first became public several weeks ago and caused a big sensation, as he was one of the most prominent men in town and had been a town official for many years.

Following the accusation he immediately resigned.

Baby Dies of Burns.

Rosie Camarano, year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Camarano, of No. 60 Gove street, East Boston, died today at the Relief Hospital of burns received Wednesday when her crib caught fire.

FOSS REFUSES DEITRICK'S REQUEST

Former Governor Foss in a letter today refused Frederick S. Deitrick's request that the former withdraw from the contest for the Republican nomination for Governor. He says Deitrick's letter is based on "a false assumption" and continues:

"When you say that I shall divide the Prohibition vote with you and that Governor Walsh will be nominated, I agree with you.

"I can think of nothing more certain than that Governor Walsh will be nominated as the Democratic nominee by a practically unanimous vote. If, therefore, the cause of Prohibition is to be served by the withdrawal of a candidate, you could contribute your mite by withdrawing."

Fifty years ago the founders of this house established themselves in the tailoring business in New York City and soon became known as the leaders in style and workmanship.

The founders then turned out and established tailoring shops in most of the big cities in America, where they met with tremendous success, reserving for themselves the exclusive use of their own tailoring, styles and ideas.
Since that time the business has remained in the same family—from fathers to sons, always improving and abreast with the times, leaders in styles and champions of big values for low prices.

All the big woolen mills with which we do business have co-operated with us to make this sale possible. Consequently our stock is the finest aggregation of men's fabrics ever gathered under a tailor's roof and is the very "last word" in the art of woolen manufacture. We have been allowed every possible trade concession by all the people with whom we do business, so that we can afford to give away this gold and make this wonderful offer. Only one gold piece and one suit and overcoat allowed to a customer.

NOTES OF FIRST SOX-TYGER BATTLE

THE season's count is 11-8 in favor of the Red Sox.

GEORGE DAUSS held tight all the way. He kept the five binglets nicely scattered and walked but one batter.

HUGHEY JENNINGS announces it will be James or Covelskie, the ex-Brownie most likely today, with the idle one on duty tomorrow. The Tiger skipper plans coming back with Dauss Monday.

TY COBB had a pudgy day, even if only hitting .333. His lone belt came in the first frame and tallied Bush, who had been passed by Foster and taken second on Veitz's infield out.

VEACH'S hot hopper took a false bound just as Scott was set for a stop. So over went Ty, while Veach got credited with a mighty lucky hit. At that, the smack was a ringing one.

COBB lined to Lewis in the third and repeated in the fifth.

THE Peach evidently had the hunch Mays was trying to "bean" him when he went up in the eighth. After dodging two wide ones, Ty threw his bat at Carl's next offering—His one was way on the outside—and then the hubbub started in earnest.

MAYS smiled, and, picking up the bat, started to carry it back to Cobb. Ty walked out and met him, murmuring something when grasping his stick. Mays' next ball tickled Cobb's shirt and Hildebrand waved him down to first.

RIGHT away Cobb lit out for second, stealing it cleanly. Thomas' peg was a good one, but "Chet" never had a chance to head off the Peach, such a big start did he get.

COBB reached third on Veach's sacrifice. Neet. Crawford rolled to Scott. It was close at the pan and Thomas didn't give an inch. But Hildebrand adjudged Cobb beat the chuck.

TWO pop bottles were shied Jennings' way when Hughie was coaching from the first base box in the seventh. Luckily neither carried the distance, and the Tiger chief sensibly acted as if he didn't know anything about the bombardment.

BUT it was different when a pop bottle dropped behind Cobb as Ty was walking across the field after gathering in Gardner's apitral for the Red Sox' twenty-seventh out. (See news columns.)

SPEAKER made the two starry plays of the battle. After Hooper got the sun in his eyes chasing Crawford's long boy in the first, Tris raced over and pulled a seemingly impossible catch. Veach was tearing pell mell around the circuit and was easily doubled off first.

THREE frames later Veach drove a terrific liner to dead centre. Speaker gave it a great chase and leaped up and hooked on in the nick of time.

BURNS took a big chance on Hooper's grin in the sixth canto and got away with it.

SPEAKER hit to bad luck, Burns and Crawford taking turns clutching on to burning liners from his stick. With the luck breaking even "Spoke" would have done much better than .250 against Dauss.

BUSH and Young played rapid ball in the Tygers' inner works.

RAY COLLINS looked as if he had plenty of "stuff" pitching to Cobb and Veach in the fifth. The veteran southpaw got rid of both sluggers without any trouble, but was promptly relieved by Pinch-Hitter Henriksen.

CARRIGANS AFTER A 50-50 DIVIDE

By RIGHT FIELD.

The Red Sox must brace today and nobody knows it better than these same red-hosed players themselves. Hughey Jennings will raid on the Eastern sea coast must be stopped by somebody, or he will be retiring to the Interior with some mighty valuable spoils and it will be too late to chase after them.

"Soak the Tygers," is the Red Sox slogan for today, with the second game of the great series on the cards.

Each player on both teams is giving everything he can to land his crowd a winner. The interest in the clashes is of almost world's series proportions, with the ball yard jammed with men, women and youngsters from far and near.

Many opine that the history of the 1915 American League race will be written wholly or in large part by the doings of today, tomorrow and Monday, and they want to be on hand to see this history in the making.

The Tygers can't put the Red Sox out of the pennant hunt, but they can deliver them an awful punch. The Carrigans, on the other hand, can send the Jennings crew off on a side track if they get the edge in this series with the Michiganders.

For today Carrigan has Dutch Leonard and E. Woolworth Shore, three-hit hurlers on their last appearances, which was Monday, eager to go in there and hold off the foe.

Jennings is likely to send James or Covelskie to the box, either being a tough nut to crack unless the Red Sox have their batting eyes with them.

Opinion in the grandstand leans heavily to the belief that the series will prove a 50-50 affair.

It appears that the Tygers showed about their fill strength in the first set-to. The Carrigans, however, have a lot more "stuff" than they displayed yesterday and today is the day all the "fans" want to see it.

Fielder Jones Suspended.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—President Gilmore of the Federal League announces that Manager Fielder Jones of the St. Louis club stands suspended for three days as a result of his run-in with Umpire Mullin.

Red Sox Can Lose and Still Be First

Perish the thought that the Tygers will thrash the Red Sox again today. But should it happen the Carrigans will remain in first place anyhow.

Another Tyger victory will have the two clubs standing thusly:

Clubs	W.	L.	P.C.
Red Sox	80	46	.652
Tygers	82	48	.657

TWO TWIN SHOWS FOR THE BRAVES

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17.—Five and one-half games is quite a handicap for any club to make up in twenty playing days. This is what faces the Braves if they are to repeat as the National League champions. Then comes this break. Two double-headers in two days here. A twin bill was scheduled for yesterday, but after one and one-half innings were played the rain descended in torrents and the whole show was called off.

With two postponed games and here only two days the Braves must play double-headers today and tomorrow.

The task is a big one for the champions, because of the injuries to the stars. Maranville hopes to play today, but may find two games too big a program. Then Fred Snodgrass will be missing for at least another week. Fred called upon a physician here yesterday and had two stitches removed from his damaged hand, but the injury has not healed enough for him to get back into the game.

"Bill" James may make his appearance in one of the games here. Stallings' pitchers have been overworked, and with Nehf, Barnes, Hughes and Regan carded to fling in the four games, it is probable that "Big Bill" may have to rescue one of them.

Katoura Wins the Long Cape May Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The schooner yacht Katoura crossed the finish line off Ambrose Channel Lightship, well ahead of the schooner yacht Atlantic II, which she raced to Cape May and back over a 214-mile course.

The Atlantic II. was not in sight from the coast when the Katoura finished, and it was not until 9:18 she crossed the line.

The race was the tenth contest for the Cape May Challenge Cup now held by the Katoura. The trophy was presented to the New York Yacht Club in 1872 by James Gordon Bennett.

The distance was 214 miles, the course being from the Ambrose Channel Lightship to the Five Fathom Lightship off Cape May and return. The schooners started at 11 a. m. yesterday.

33 RETAINED ON BIG SQUAD BY HAUGHTON

Even though the thermometer still flirted with the 90's, the Harvard football squad was sent through two busy practice sessions yesterday on Soldiers' Field.

After a meeting of the coaches at noon, Head Coach Percy Haughton divided the candidates into two squads. When Haughton arrived on the field for the afternoon work all the candidates were hard at it and the men selected for the first squad were called back into the locker building, where they were given a long talk by the Crimson coach.

THE 33 BEST BETS.

The players retained on the first squad, thirty-three in all, are: Captain Eddie Mahan, Dadmun, Enwright Parsons, Snow, J. M. Middendorf, H. S. Middendorf, C. Bond, Thatcher, Whitney, Weatherhead, Soucy, Wallace, Coolidge, Hartley, Taylor, Woodruff, Doherty, Harwood, Wallace, Lyman, Sagar, Wiggin, Bigelow, R. C. Curtis, Robinson, Murray, Rollins, Duncan, Cowen, A. W. Gardner, Lathrop, and "Billy" Bates.

Dick Harte, Laurie Curtis and C. G. Caner are in Philadelphia, playing in the Intercollegiate tennis tournament and will not report for football until about Monday. Harte and Curtis will try for end positions, while Caner is a candidate for tackle.

As soon as the first squad returned to the playing field the men were divided into three elevens and ran through signals for about an hour. It was a badly fagged out bunch of athletes that returned to the locker building about 5:30 o'clock.

BIGELOW IS AT TACKLE.

The only feature of the long signal drill was the work of "Big Jack" Bigelow at tackle. He was a centre man last year, but has put on so much weight he has outgrown the position and has his eyes focused on a tackle appointment.

The first teams put a lot of snap into their work, running through plays with a dash that would lead one to suspect that the weather was ideal for football, instead of best suited for swimming.

All Featherhead, a first substitute end last year, reported for the first time and was out in his togs during both sessions. Weatherhead appears to be in fine shape. He went through yesterday's practice without a let up.

M'FARLAND DOES NOT PLAN TO QUIT RING

"PACKEY" M'FARLAND is going to fight again. It may be three months before the Chicago boxer enters the ring again, while it may only be a few weeks before he starts on the trail of some more easy money.

McFarland is anxious to prove that he is a real "come back." He wants to convince the sport loving public that he is not a flivver as a boxer. He may be able to make good, but there are many close followers of the boxing game who do not believe that Packey will ever be able to perform as well as he did a couple of years ago when he was unbeatable.

When McFarland boxes again he will not receive $16,700 for his services. His end of the purse will be nearer to $2,000 than the sum he received for his setto with Gibbons.

The majority of fight "fans" are of the opinion that McFarland got $17,500 for boxing Gibbons. So it known that he received an additional $1,200 from a moving picture concern for giving his permission for "movies" to be taken of the contest. "Packey" dearly loves money and he is not overlooking any bets when there are any greenbacks in sight.

GILBERT GALLANT, Chelsea's aggressive lightweight, is not worrying a great deal about the heat wave. He is booked to box Charley White of Chicago in a twelve-round whirl at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night and is preparing himself for the contest. Gallant was in fine condition when the match was made, as he recently clashed with Frankie Callahan of Brooklyn at the Atlas Club. He is already within a few notches of 135 pounds, the weight at which the rival boxers have agreed to scale in on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

WHITE will naturally rule a top-heavy favorite in the betting. The wise men figure that the Chicago lightweight's punching ability will enable him to breeze by a whitey. Alex McLean, manager of Gallant, believes that his protege will upset the "dope." In discussing the matter today he said:

"I realize that White is one of the best boxers in the lightweight division, but I still contend that Gallant possesses enough class to give him a merry tussle.

"THE RABBITS' COLUMN" By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17—In less than three weeks the pennant fights in the National and American Leagues will be a matter of history. The stage will then be set for the World's Series and the two winning teams will struggle for supremacy. It has been a great year for baseball. While the receipts in some cities have not been as great as in former years, the article of ball furnished by most of the sixteen clubs has been of the best.

* * *

THE National League race is a wonderful affair. While the Phillies have been in the lead most of the season, they have been hard pressed at all times. During the past month they have had to play at top speed in order to hold the Braves and Dodgers at bay. Earlier in the season Chicago, New York, St. Louis and even Pittsburgh were dangerous at times.

* * *

A HOT, spirited pennant race, such as we are having in the National League, helps baseball a great deal. It creates interest, and large crowds turn out all over, even in St. Louis and Cincinnati, usually not rated good baseball towns. The players on the different clubs also display more interest in their work. Big crowds inspire them to greater efforts.

* * *

I BELIEVE that the sensational showing of the Braves in 1914 had a great deal to do with the bang-up race in the Toner circuit this year. We proved to the sporting world that a ball club, even though not rated high at the start of a season, could win a pennant and a world's championship if it played smart baseball; kept fighting for everything in sight and displayed proper team spirit.

* * *

BASEBALL would have suffered greatly if any one team had taken the lead early in their year's National League race and secured a big margin on its opponents. That would have caused the "fans" to lose interest. The result would have been that small crowds would have attended the games. When the box office is hit, the game suffers. This would have been a particular bad year to have had a poor pennant race, as baseball, like almost every other enterprise, has been injured to a certain extent by the European war and its resulting evils.

* * *

THE race in the American League has not been quite as close as the flag fight in the National League. The Red Sox, Tigers and White Sox have outclassed the other clubs. Consequently, clubs like Philadelphia, St. Louis and Cleveland, which have been trailing the field most of the season, have not drawn very well at home. Cleveland has probably lost money on the season, while "Connie" Mack may possibly split even as a result of his several big sales.

* * *

BOSTON "fans," as usual, have been very loyal to the Braves and Red Sox. We always had big crowds during our recent home stay. An average of 14,000 persons turned out to witness our matinees. I understand the Red Sox have not drawn quite as well since they returned to Fenway Park, but they should get the crowds now that the Tigers are in the Hub.

* * *

I THINK that our new park helped a lot in boosting the attendance mark when we were at home. There were a certain number of baseball lovers who wished to see this plant. Then, too, we played a fast game of ball while at home and the "fans" will always turn out when a club delivers the goods.

Jack Kelly Succeeds Kimber.

Jack Kelly has been elected captain of the Cambridge Latin School eleven. He succeeds Frank Kimber, who enters Exeter. Kelly played tackle on the 1914 team and was one of the stars of the eleven. He succeeds this year's crew and is also a member of the school's track team.

OLD ELI COACHES LINEUP CHARGES

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 17.—The first and second Yale elevens lined up for the first time this season. No scoring was attempted. Still, the session was fairly rapid and fairly rough, and the coaches were all smiles when it was over.

It will be real work from now on, Ledora, Scovell, Conroy and Walden of last year's varsity, all picked to be in the limelight this Fall, lined up with the second team.

Cooney Working to Bolster Tiger Line

PRINCETON, Sept. 17.—The Tiger coaches are concentrating all their energies in building a solid line. Jim Cooney, an old Princeton star, has the tackle candidates a stiff two hours' workout.

The most promising newcomers on the varsity squad trying for line berths are Haley, Kauffman and Smith, all members of last year's freshman eleven.

Two Frolics for Amherst.

AMHERST, Sept. 17.—Amherst's squad of thirty warriors worked both morning and afternoon. Coach Riley is well satisfied with the appearance of his squad. Among the players on hand are: Captain Rider, Ashley, Knowlton, Edwards, Washburn, Tow '14, Woodward, Schmid, Hobart, Goodrich, Downer, Brown, Whitney, Widmayer '17; Taber, Matthews, "Hill" Washburn, Redmond, Hohensack and Brinkerhoff '15. Amherst entertains Middlebury in its first game, September 25.

Cornell Has Stiff Practice.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The Cornell coaches lined up three elevens, despite the extreme heat, and sent them through a fast signal practice. Manning the first team were Shelton, Eckley, Zander, Shiverick and Ryerson, ends; Bailey, Jameson, Jewett and Fisher, guards; Cool and Brown, centre; Anderson and Snyder, tackles; Barrett, quarterback; Collins, Lucho, Benedict and one or two others in the backfield.

Exeter Star at Lafayette.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 17.—Scott, the former Exeter star, is Lafayette's drop-kick sensation. In the practice he dropped ten in a row over the crossbar from the 28-yard line. Lake, another old Exeter boy, is also kicking in fine fashion. Benfer, an All-bright star, is due to join the squad today.

West Point Shifts Neyland.

WEST POINT, Sept. 17.—The West Point squad had a day off, merely going in for the usual military drills. Neyland is going in at quarter today. Kelly, Exeter's 1914 captain, an end candidate, is among the many warriors getting too light as a result of doing much work in the blazing sun.

DARTMOUTH HAS HOT SCRIMMAGE

HANOVER, Sept. 17.—If there was any doubt as to the fighting spirit of the Dartmouth squad it was dispelled by the fighting spirit shown by all four elevens in defiance of the extreme heat. In the morning the squad practiced punting and passing and ran the two-hour workout by having the first team run through all the old plays.

In the afternoon several new plays were tried in the gymnasium. Later the first and second teams and third and fourth teams had two 9-minute scrimmages. First and second elevens line-ups:

FIRST TEAM.		SECOND TEAM.
Baxter, r.		r., Gile
Hall, r.		r., Barrett
Merrill, r.		r., Reed
Carson, r.		r., Wilson

Indians Are Ready.

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 17.—The Carlisle candidates were put through their last scrimmage before the Albright College game here on Saturday. Several new formations were tried out. Kelley took the varsity backfield men and the second team line players and scrimmaged them against the varsity line and second eleven's backfield. A fifteen-minute scrimmage with the varsity men in their regular positions concluded the practice.

Lehigh Form Lineup.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Sept. 17.—Fifty men reported on Taylor Field at Lehigh and for the first time there were two teams in action. The lineup of the first team was: Green and Magruiness, ends; Tate and Richards, tackles; Grumbach and Pons, guards; McDonald, centre; Schill and Keady, halfbacks; Chenoweth, quarterback, and Halsted, fullback.

Tufts Likes Algar's Looks.

The Tufts College squad continues to grow, of the new-comers Philip Algar of Huntington High looms up as being sure to land a berth in the line. Newcomers include Aubrey, Neville, Barron, Watson, L. M. Hawker and "Spike" Tyler.

Wesleyan Starts Monday.

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., Sept. 17.—Wesleyan's practice starts next Monday, with Captain Hingeley in command. Kenan, Johnson, Newhall, Nourse, Bovard and Thompson are 1914 regulars numbered among the missing.

GATHERED ON SOLDIERS FIELD TODAY

AS this is the last day of practice for the Harvard football men this week, the first and second squads reported at the Locker Building before 9 o'clock for the day's initial workout, and under the supervision of "Pooch" Donovan, ran through signals until almost noon.

NOW that the 11 candidates have been divided into first and second squads, the football practice can be called officially started, though doubtless there will be many changes from week to week. Some of the men chosen for the first team will be dropped back to "Bob" Guild's aggregation and men who show promise will be sent up to Coach Haughton's collection.

ABOUT the only warrior of promise left with the second squad is Murray Taylor. He played quarterback on the 1914 freshman team. Taylor has some difficulties to straighten out with the office before he will be eligible for the varsity.

WITH such men as "Billy" Bates, Willie Willcox, Jack Doherty, "Billy" Murray and "Dumpy" Whitney, not to mention Coolidge, the fight for the position is bound to be keenly and hotly fought. Willcox, Murray and Doherty, while very light, are fast and aggressive. Bates is the heaviest man out for the directors' berth, and as he has a good head and is a born fighter, is the man most liable to get the job.

IT is too bad that Robinson, a member of the freshman team last year, is not heavier. This boy is a fine halfback and a great punter, but appears to be entirely too light for varsity work.

WINGATE ROLLINS, who prepared for Harvard at Roxbury Latin School, is a candidate for the back field and is a man who bears watching. Rollins is heavier than he was last season and seems to be faster.

ALTHOUGH it is altogether too early to make predictions, the way that Buck Bigelow handled himself at tackle this morning caused much favorable comment. The Jersey centre has an ideal build for a tackle, and will be a great asset to Harvard.

AL WEATHERHEAD, who did not report for practice until yesterday morning, is expected to come through with flying colors this year. He has all the earmarks of a great end. Al was in the fight to the finish last year, but did not quite have the "class" of Jeff Coolidge. Coaches Gilbert Brown and Frank O'Brien predict that Weatherhead will "arrive" this season.

TOM ENRIGHT has gone down to business and is doing his utmost to show that he is as skilled a football player as "touted." He is one of the first men on the field every day and works every minute to round himself into the best possible shape.

THAT the "Haughton System" of coaching is the greatest can be easily seen every day on Soldiers Field. There is not an idle moment from the time that "Dr." arrives on the field until he sends the men to the showers. Every session is opened with a long talk by the head coach, and within half a minute after oral practice every man on the squad is at work.

WHILE the first string men were in the Locker Building listening to Head Coach Haughton, "Bob" Guild lost no time getting his squad divided into teams. Murray Taylor was given first choice at quarterback and for the first time this season an eleven was raced up and down the field, running through signals.

THAT Captain Eddie Mahan is a great lover of the game of football is shown every day. Usually Harvard captains take things easy, doing the after part of the season, figuring that they have done enough work before they were honored with the captaincy. But it is different with Mahan. He is the busiest man on the field and that he is already in the pink of condition is very evident from the freshness he displays after the hard day's work.

TOM THACHER, running mate of Tom Enwright's on the freshman eleven last year, and a son of Ex-Congressman Thacher, will be a hard man to keep off the varsity. Thacher won his spurs at St. Marks, both as a football and baseball player.

New Record for William.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 17.—At the meeting of the Grand Circuit, C. K. G. Billings drove William to a wagon to beat 2:01¼. The time, 1:58¾, is a new world's record to wagon with amateur driver.

RING RESULTS

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 17.—Frank Mantell of Pittsburgh defeated Jerry Sloan of Buffalo in a twenty-round bout. Rogers was unable to stop Mantell's defense.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Jimmy Duffey of the West Side defeated Al Thomas of Brooklyn at the Olympic A. C. in the semi-final Carey Marshall knocked out Tommy Holmes in the third round.

BANGOR, Sept. 17.—Ellis Sanborn of Bangor and Eddie Trenchie of New Brunswick met at the Pastime Club, the bout being stopped in the fifth round by the referee, Sanborn being declared the winner. Johnny Mitchell, the recognized "Kid" Poulor of Brewer fought six rounds to a draw.

Sport in Tabloid Form.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The schooner yacht Katrina won the 151-mile race to Cape May and back, with the Atlantic II second. It was the tenth like success.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—C. B. Garland of Yale and R. M. Harris of Adelphi met in the Metropolitan junior championship tennis finals on the Forest Hills courts.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 17.—Henry Powers of Atlantic City defeated Westfall Reinhorn of Lexington, Ky., for the singles championship in the Wesley Hopes shoot, breaking forty-seven consecutive targets in the shoot-off. Ed Forman of Abersham, Md., had an unfinished run of 87.

Cooney Working to Bolster Tiger Line

PRINCETON, Sept. 17.—The Tiger coaches are concentrating all their energies in building a solid line. Jim Cooney, an old Princeton star, has the tackle candidates a stiff two hours' workout.

The most promising newcomers on the varsity squad trying for line berths are Haley, Kauffman and Smith, all members of last year's freshman eleven.

Boils and Pimples Dangerous S. S. S. Your Remedy

Standard for Fifty Years

Modern science has proven that boils and carbuncles, pimples and unsightly skin blotches, are the danger signals of diseased blood. Scaly skin and itching of Eczema, Scrofula, Rashes—all skin diseases are aggravated by bad blood—it's the infected blood that's dangerous. Don't wait for the boils. If you have pimples and blotches, take instant action. Pimples tell you that your blood is filled with impurities. You must wash out your blood, strengthen and stimulate it to healthy action with Nature's own blood tonic, S. S. S. It is the standard blood purifier of the world. Don't use any drugs, don't use ointments and salves. S. S. S. reaches the blood, drives out the impurities. It makes healthy perspiration—the poison is literally sweated out through the skin. Boils, blotches, Eczema and the Scrofula indications disappear. It does what salves and lotions can never do—it goes to the very root of the trouble by reaching the blood. Your skin becomes clear and you soon feel the vigor of the return of perfect health. S. S. S. is purely vegetable. You can get it at any druggist's, but you must take S. S. S. The Greatest Science of All

Wonders of Astronomy and What Their Explanation Has Meant to the World

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I DON'T care anything about astronomy. I judge it is about as important as chess." I heard these words from an apparently intelligent man, evidently unusually well-to-do in a material way, who had "made his fortune," and had learned from his experience in life no higher lesson than that a strict application to business is the surest road to prosperity. I said to him:

"When you link astronomy with chess, you at least acknowledge its intellectual character, although you show complete ignorance of its history, its methods and its aims."

"Well, what does it amount to?" he demanded, testily. "Can anybody improve his condition in this world by mooning about other ones? What do I care whether Mars is inhabited or not? What good does it do me if there are giants up there, as I have heard? I can't sell them anything. They are commercially of no account. Show me a way to open up trade with them and I'll go as far as anybody in astronomy. It would have some meaning then.

"But all this stuff is pure speculative bosh! I don't even care whether the earth goes round the sun or the sun round the earth. It all comes to the same thing, don't it? Intellectual! Pish. I see two men sit down and waste two hours pushing pieces of wood around a chess board, and they call it intellectual amusement, and then I read about men who spend their lives staring through telescopes at the stars, and counting how many million twinkles there are in the sky at night, and you call that intellectual, too. Well, I want something more practical and useful."

AID GIVEN BY STARS

"Then," said I, "if your mind is incapable of kindling into great thoughts at the stupendous spectacle of the starry universe; if you are unmoved by the sight of the countless multiture of vast, blazing suns scattered around us in space, at distances so immense that they appear like mere points of light in the bottomless, black immensity; if there is nothing for you in the reflection that the earth is of infinitely less relative importance amidst this illimitable creation than a speck of mist hovering in the spray of Niagara; if you can catch no inspiration from the thought that man, infinitesimal as he is physically, nevertheless possesses the mental power to grasp these wonders —then take a lower view, and consider a side of astronomy which even you must acknowledge to be in the highest degree practical and useful.

"Consider that without astronomy we should have no correct measures of time, and no sure means of finding our way about over the earth. All measurements upon the earth's surface rest upon an astronomical foundation. Man could never have mapped the world he dwells in, could never have established the boundaries of nations, could never have ventured out upon the open sea, could never have ascertained the distances between far separated lands, nor even their directions from one another, without the aid of astronomical observations. That commerce, that trade between peoples and nations, that circulation of wealth and exchange of products by which you have won your material prosperity—all of these are the gifts of astronomy to mankind.

"Even in the most ancient times the traders, crossing the vast Oriental deserts with their treasures, were indebted to men wise in star-lore for the laying out of the routes that they followed. The first navigators of the little Mediterranean Sea had to learn the geography of the stars before they could venture out of sight of land.

"The earliest traditions of the human race relate to the stars and their relations to the wants and conveniences of man. The mightiest monuments of antiquity—the pyramids of the Nile, the huge Egyptian temples, the mounds of Babylon and Nineveh, the stone circles of the Druids, the teocallis of Mexico, the sun-temples of Peru—all are of astronomical origin, and show the ceaseless dependance of mankind upon the study of the stars."

CONSTANT BENEFIT

"But," said the man, "these are old things, passed long ago. It may be that once astronomy was useful in studying out these things, but that is all done now. We have got our measures and our time keepers, and to keep on bothering with the stars seems to me like studying the A B C book after you are out of school."

"No," I said, "you are still wrong. If the observatories of the world were closed tonight, never to be reopened, in a little while the entire life of the planet Earth would be completely upset. Clocks and chronometers would go wrong. There would be collisions and disasters without numbers on land and sea, and the great lines of navigation and of railroad communication would all thrown into disorder or had to be abandoned. I could not tell you in an hour's talk the full story of calamity that would overtake mankind if the practical cultivation of astronomy should suddenly cease. The astronomer has many other things to think of beside the question of the existence or non-existence of inhabitants on Mars."

Making an Asset of Regret

How to Make Valuable the Little Blunders of Everyday Life

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

IT is just as important to be sorry about some things in life as to be glad because of others. There is no particular crime in making a mistake, provided you make it once!

If you can win knowledge from blundering and wring strength from your weaknesses, you may involve a wonderful person out of yourself, though that self was very weak and insignificant in the beginning.

You must regret every day you loss in idleness, vanity or laziness. When you cast up accounts at night, see yourself if you have grown any that day, if you have accomplished anything constructive, if you are better and stronger for what you have done that day and if you have given anything to it.

If the day has been lost, regret it; out of that regret evolve the determination to make tomorrow count so greatly that the loss of today will not be complete.

Regret every hour you have lost and so determine to have no more such cause for regret.

As the old proverb says, "The spoken word comes not back." How deeply then must you regret every unkind word you uttered. Perhaps the speech that wounded, darkened the day for some one else; perhaps it destroyed some one's faith in human nature; perhaps it sowed seeds of cynicism and bitterness, and surely in your own nature it planted the weeds of unkindness, of lack of consideration and of cruel thoughtlessness.

MAKING AMENDS

By regretting the unkind words you have spoken, determine to make amends for them. Go humbly tomorrow to the friend you have hurt and say, "I spoke hastily and unkindly to you yesterday. I am sorry. I will never wound you so again consciously, and if unconsciously I do it, I will try to make amends. Can you forgive me?"

If you have judged any one hastily; if you have suspected any one unjustly, those things, too, you must bitterly regret. Your hasty judgment reflected on yourself, for the ignoble action of which you thought some one else capable was conceived in your own mind, and so was a thing you yourself might possibly have done.

Your suspicions mark you in the same way. Regret them because they were unfair to yourself and your neighbor. Regret them and resolve to judge less hastily, and even if possible not to judge at all.

Remember, "There but for the grace of God goes John Bunyan" were the words of that philosopher when he saw an unfortunate on the way to execution. Except for fortunate circumstances in your own life you might be in the place of the vilest criminal. And then shall you judge another? And if you have, regret it bitterly, for the judgment reflects most on your own charity and humanity.

REJOICE OVER HEART

Never regret any confidence you have placed in human nature, or any kindness and sincerity you have shown.

If you have suffered through some one else's sorrow, if you have rendered service and have met with ingratitude for both, still you have no cause for regret. Rather rejoice that you have a heart capable of generosity and kindness and determine that it gives them freely to the world since they are what you can contribute to life about you.

If you have humbly repented and it causes you grief and suffering, you must still rejoice because you know the finer feelings.

If your dreams turn out to be vain illusions, never regret them, but go on hoping and rejoice that you can hope.

The only things you need regret are the things you cannot look at squarely and honestly and acknowledge as the fruits of your day.

The Story of a Doctor's Wife

Told by the Wife Herself

CHAPTER XIII.

"WAIT a minute, Peter. I have something to tell you and Connie—the collection of trumps in your office won't run away. I'm engaged—I'm going to marry Jim Farley."

I had been waiting a week for Betty to tell us that; waiting since the night when Jim had asked me if he should speak to Betty. It seemed to me that he guessed how much I was beginning to rely on his devoted friendship. I was even frightened lest he imagine that I misinterpreted the quality of his liking for me, and so I had told him "it would be splendid if Betty cared as he did."

Long afterward I was to remember the hurt look in his eyes at my lightness. Long afterward I was to know that Betty was Jim's refuge from his Love, to call it by its true name, for his chum's wife.

"Great! That's the best thing I've ever heard, little Betty. I don't blame Jim a bit; he's pretty clever and now he's landed a wonderful girl for a wife," cried Peter heartily, and dashed around the table to kiss my sister. "Isn't this the best ever, Connie?"

"It's splendid," said I, but there seemed a curious flatness in my tone.

Later Peter reproached me for my indifference to my sister's happiness, and with a sniffy feeling that perhaps I had been too absorbed in my thoughts to show the proper enthusiasm, I volunteered that very evening to help Betty with her trousseau.

"Marion's going with me to all the shops where she buys—but I'd love to have you come along, Connie, and get to know Maidie better," replied Betty.

But it was a week before my sister suggested a desire to have me assist in the selection of her trousseau.

A SIP OF TEA

We shopped all one long afternoon, and at five Marion suggested having tea at a place of which she knew. "Tea" sounds innocent enough and so I accompanied my sister and her sister-in-law-to-be with a cheery feeling that we would surely get acquainted over the teacups. The place to which Marion guided us was revealed as a flower-hung room with shaded lights and the dimness of some fairy cave.

Soft music was playing and little tables all about were filled with bright-eyed people who looked to me far more cheerful than the semi-gloom of the places secited to warrant. We were ushered to a table, and Marion promptly asked me what I would have, laughing a little at my "Tea, of course."

Suddenly the syncopated strains of a fox-trot sounded, and the people who had been intently dining and chatting, about the floor. And then, with disconcerting suddenness two things for which I was totally unprepared occurred.

A VOLUNTEER DANCER

A man from a nearby table leaned forward, and, looking into my eyes so earnestly that I thought for a second I must know him, murmured, "Shall we dance?" And the waiter who came at our table my own pot of tea and two tall highball glasses, with the accompaniment of tiny whiskey flagons and a bottle of seltzer.

I was so busy assuming an air of stately disdain with which to shame my would-be cavalier that I hardly saw the waiter bring to my table the drinks which it never occurred to me my sister and Marion could have ordered. Suddenly, however, I became aware of them and decided to protest against the stupid blunder I thought the waiter had made.

He glanced at me quizzically.

I hardly liked to sit facing a bold man who had asked me to dance while his amused smile rested on the very sophisticated drinks with which my table was decorated. So I sent hastily for the waiter and informed him that he had made a mistake in the drinks he had brought.

"Oh, no, madam," said he, "this is what the ladies always take."

From the moment of hearing that "always take" to the time when the insolent man who had supposed he could speak to me without a introduction came over and greeted Marion Farley with the assured air of old friendship, I endured a nightmare of puzzlement and disgust.

With what I thought brazen effrontery the man said to Marion, "Introduce me to your little friend," and I found myself looking up into amused blue eyes behind gold-rimmed spectacles while Marion pronounced the formula, "Mrs. Drayton—Judge Snow."

MY DISGUST GROWS

And now to add to my disgust came a little fear of my imagination: "If this is the way a middle-aged judge behaves himself—how does my wonderful young Peter act when I am not there to see?"

And in a fever of tormenting jealousy I sat silently by while Maidie and Betty drank their second highball and coquetted wildly with the judge and other middle-aged charmers who came to our table for partners. I sat stiffly by, disclaiming all knowledge or dancing, and showing I supposed, very little knowledge of courtesy or good manners either.

At the dinner table Betty told the story to Peter. She carefully omitted all mention of the highballs, and insisted that Judge Snow was an old friend of Jim's and that she felt that it was all right to be there with Jim's sister. In the archness with which she told the story and her sweet deference to Peter's opinion, added to assurances that she would never go again if He didn't approve, I found added cause for discomfort. And later on Peter's tone did not surprise me.

"What a little Puritan you are, Connie. You might have been civil to the judge, since he's a friend of Jim's.

"But, Peter, the judge spoke to me without introduction. He leaned over and asked me to dance while the girls were off with other men."

PETER IS AMUSED

"The impudent old jackanapes!" gasped Peter, and then leaned back and laughed the wonderful tender laugh I had not heard for so long. "So my Connie's a bit of a flirt, too. Well, I'm mighty glad you took the old codger down a peg or two."

But in my heart was the bitter knowledge that I was attractive to my husband—doubly attractive to the father of my little boy—because a middle-aged Don Juan named Judge Snow had been interested in me.

Suddenly a terrifying thought came to me. Peter always made it very evident that he admired my little sister Betty tremendously. He had not even scrupled to flirt with her, and she had responded, ignoring the pain I could not hide. Suppose I were to flirt a bit—with Judge Snow, or even with Jimmie Farley! What would happen then? I began to wonder. And with me to wonder was to investigate.

Anecdotes of the Famous

Great soldiers are usually men of deeds more than men of words. Thus, after the capitulation of Prague, Suvaroff communicated the joyful news to his Empress in two words, "Hurrah! Prague!" to which Catherine, not to be outdone in brevity, answered, "Bravo, Field-Marshal!"

That grim sea-dog, Robert Blake, after gaining one of his famous victories over the French, sent the news in this concise and business-like form:

"Met with the French fleet; beat, killed, sunk and burned, as per margin."

The Vicomte de Turenne, Marshal of France, was a man of equally few words, as he proved when, after his brilliant defeat of Conde at the Dunes in 1658, he announced his triumph in ten words:

"The enemy came; was beaten; I am tired; good night!"

But the world's greatest generals have always been models of brevity as of modesty since—and probably long before—the day of Caesar, whose "I came, I saw, I conquered," sent to his friend, Amintius, after the glorious victory over Pharnaces at Zela, is the most famous "dispatch" in the annals of war.

The Spartan soldiers, we know, were past-masters of this laconic art of expression. The three words, "Athens is taken," recorded the conclusion of that titanic struggle, the Peloponnesian war. "Persia is taken" announced the triumphant issue of another great campaign. And on that historic occasion when Xerxes sent an imperious demand to Leonidas to give up his arms, all the answer he received from the Spartan King was, "Come and take them."

When Atticus once discovered a treasure of gold while digging under a house he sent news of his discovery to the Emperor, Nerva, from whom he received the laconic reply, "Use it." And when, in his diffidence, he protested that it was too large a sum for his own personal use, the Emperor responded, "Then abuse it."

From all over the world congratulations have been showered upon Mme. Sarah Bernhardt upon her recovery.

The famous actress is fond of telling an amusing story of a certain great actor who possessed a marvellous power of mimicry.

Although he earned big money, he was always hard up, and one day he visited his tailor to ask him for more time on an account owing three years. While he was there a customer entered the shop and paid for several articles which were immediately delivered. Then the actor heaved a deep sigh of pain.

"What is the matter, monsieur?" asked the tailor.

"Alas!" replied the actor, sighing again. "There is a man I shall never be able to imitate!"

ALL of the summertime loafing is over,
Back to the city and duty we come;
My, but it's hard from a rest to recover
And make things hum!

Now that vacation has vanished in glory,
I think next Summer in harness I'll stay;
Work's only easy when it's an old story—
Not after play!

For all my friends I've the same proposition,
Harness again makes vacation a loss,
But there's no word of the rest's abolition
Said to my Boss!

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

When you have the incentive, plan, method and cause to do some great thing and lack enthusiasm to weld them together, the achievement crumbles like cake without milk or is as heavy and soggy as bread without yeast.

* * *

For the girl who can manage her weapons, simple frankness suffices better than coquetry. Men are on the lookout for ruses to ensnare their emotions—they never dream of counter attacks on their brains.

Unless you can think, when the song is done,
No other is soft in the rhythm,
Unless you can feel, when loved by one,
That all men else go with him;
Unless you can know, when unpraised by his breath,
That your beauty itself wants proving;
Unless you can swear—"for life, for death,"
Oh, fear to call it loving!

Unless you can muse in a crowd all day
On the absent face that fixed you;
Unless you can love, as the angels may,
With a breath of Heaven betwixt you;
Unless you can dream that his faith is fast,
Through behooving and unbehooving;
Unless you can die when the dream is past—
Oh, never call it loving.

—ELIZABETH B. BROWNING.

Cadum Ointment has a most soothing and healing effect wherever the skin is inflamed, irritated or diseased.

A list of its ingredients is printed upon every box. One ingredient is oil of cade, which is one of the best things known for Eczema. Another ingredient is zinc oxide, which dries up the water that forms upon sore places on the skin. How Much Do You Save?

Hundreds of thousands of married men and women and hundreds of thousands of unmarried fail to save a portion of their incomes.

Hundreds of thousands of others put away a certain sum each week or month.

The Boston American invites its readers to give their experiences in saving for publication on this page.

These experiences, besides being of interest as human documents, will be a help and an inspiration to those who have not cultivated the habit of thrift.

Write on one side of the paper only and limit your articles to 250 words. Address Editor Magazine Page, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street.

A RANDOLPH LADY CLAIMS IS CURED

Mrs. Susie Keith, Who Resides on North Street, Is Praising Plant Juice.

"There is no virtue in medicine," many people say. "Ignorance is the cause of giving voice to such a statement," said the Plant Juice Man. "Now if you will read what local people write in regard to Plant Juice, the great herbal system tonic, it will convince the most skeptical. Since the new system tonic, Plant Juice, has been introduced here, its effects have been truly wonderful in correcting and eradicating the various symptoms of a deranged stomach. It has taken a firm hold on the public because it relieves and restores pain and happiness.

"One of the statements daily received from local people, telling of the benefits derived from Plant Juice in cases of stomach, liver and kidney trouble is that of Mrs. Susie Keith, who resides on North Street, in Randolph, and is well known in lodge and church circles. She says:

"For over five years I have suffered from stomach and kidney trouble. My stomach was in such a weak condition that I was not able to eat any solid food at all. I was nervous and restless and could not sleep at night and I was in such a weak condition I was not able to do my housework for over two years. The doctor told me I had neuritis in my right arm, as I was unable to use it and the least little excitement would make me faint away. I had not attended church for over two years and all my friends knew that I was sick. My ill feelings were so cold that I had to use two hot water bottles to keep myself internally to warm me up. A friend told me about Plant Juice and as I had tried so many remedies, which did me no good, I had really no faith in anything; however, I got a bottle and began to take it and by my great surprise it gave me immediate relief. I have taken it now for 20 days and am doing my own work, as my troubles are gone. I sleep fine, can eat everything without distress, the nervous trouble has left me and I am a well woman, as Plant Juice has cured me, and all my friends will tell you so."

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett Co.'s Penn Store corner of Washington and Avon Sts., where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

The safest soap for babies is Resinol

This is so, first because it is one of the few soaps which contain no free alkali—that harsh, drying chemical which so frequently causes eczema, or other skin irritation. But, even more important, it contains the soothing, healing Resinol medication* to keep the delicate skin soft, clear and beautiful. You can safely trust your baby's skin health to Resinol Soap.

Sold by all druggists. For trial size cake free, write to Dept. 3-T, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

*Prescribed by doctors, for over 20 years, in Resinol Ointment, to heal skin affections.

WAKEFIELD FAIR HOLDS GRANGE DAY

Grange Day was observed today at the Quannapowitt fair at the Wakefield-Reading grounds, when all of the granges in the section were guests of the management. Special interest was taken in the grange exhibits this year, as they filled the entire exhibition hall.

Edward Chapman of Ludlow, State master of the State Grange, was a guest and speaker. Several prominent State officials, including Lieutenant-Governor Cushing, spoke. Tomorrow Governor Walsh will be the principal guest.

Judging in the baby show will probably be completed today, all of the physicians in nearby cities and towns assisting in selecting the most perfect babies. Announcement of the winners will probably not be made for some days, owing to the large number of entries.

Entries in the three-horse races today total 41 horses, with two trots and a pace to be contested, and purses of $300 in each event to be awarded.

Woman's Will Gives to Six Charities

Charitable institutions are to benefit under the will of Ellen M. Dorey of Brookline, filed today in the Norfolk County Court. One thousand dollars each goes to the following: Boston Home for Destitute Catholic Children, St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum in Boston, Little Sisters of the Poor in Roxbury, Holy Ghost Hospital in Cambridge, Young Ladies' Charitable Association for the Care of Consumptives of Dorchester, and the Boston Working Boys' Home. After various small bequests, the residue of the estate goes to William H. Dorey of Philadelphia, a cousin.

Heat Half-Holiday at Chase & Sanborn's

The hot weather of yesterday brought a pleasant half holiday to the employes of Chase & Sanborn, importers of tea and coffee. The factory was closed at noon, and all the employes went down the harbor to enjoy the cool breezes of Nantasket Beach.

Walsh to Attend Sturbridge Fair

Governor Walsh will be at the State House for a brief period this morning before leaving for the Worcester South Agricultural Fair at Sturbridge, which he is to attend today, followed by the Deerfield Valley Agricultural fair at Charlemont tomorrow afternoon.

Telephone Pictures Posed by Chickering

The photographs of the five Main telephone exchange operators which appeared in last Sunday's AMERICAN in connection with a story of their coming marriages, were specially posed for the AMERICAN at the studio of Elmer Chickering on West street. Credit to the studio was inadvertently omitted.

Dean Thayer to Be Buried Tomorrow

The funeral of Professor Ezra Ripley Thayer, dean of the Harvard Law School, who committed suicide by drowning in the Charles river basin Tuesday night and whose body was found yesterday, will take place from the Church of St. John the Evangelist at Hingham tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Some high-class speed racing is scheduled for the Narragansett Park speedway in Providence tomorrow afternoon. No meet having a higher class of entries has ever been scheduled east of New York city, and seldom has it been equalled in that locality.

The men who are coming to dedicate the new asphalt surface at Narragansett comprise the best known and the most daring of motor car drivers; men who have won their spurs in hard fought contests and whose names have often been most prominent in racing annals.

The management of the track has certainly been successful in bringing to the Rhode Island city men and machines capable of traveling in record-breaking speed. The fact that $10,000 in cash prizes is hung up for the 100-mile event and $4,000 in cash prizes for the 25-mile event has, of course, had great tendency to bring to Providence the best there is in the racing world, and the only prominent entries lacking being those of Resta and Oldfield.

Ralph De Palma, "Tobby" Burman and Harry Grant, all men who have won in national and international contests, will endeavor to create a record that will stand for years to come. In addition to the motor racing there will be a series of motorcycle events, in which the leading experts of the Eastern section will compete.

Some seventy-five Chalmers dealers are today enjoying the hospitality of Harry N. Pyke, the Boston manager of the Chalmers Motor Car Company. They are being entertained at luncheon at the Nantasket Club, learning about the Chalmers organization as a whole and each enjoying the proud ownership of a Chalmers 6-40 or 6-45, which was received in this city by special train on Wednesday and which were delivered to the agents prior to their starting for Nantasket today.

Today is know as Chalmers Drive-Away Day, the dealers coming to Boston to meet the factory representatives and then driving their cars to their home towns. The factory representatives now in this city are Vice-President C. A. Pefler, Paul Smith, Frank L. Willis, who during the day took occasion to keep in close touch with the Chalmers' boomers.

TO ASK ARRESTS IN HEARING ON VOTING LISTS

Michael J. Flynn, agent of the Anti-Illegal Registration League, today applied to the Boston Election Commissioners for a certificate of their recent display in certain illegal registration charges. Flynn told reporters he would ask for a warrant for the arrest of three men who were accused of being illegally registered.

The commissioners had ruled that Richard F. Field was illegally registered in Ward 6, and Max Swartz and John B. Piscopo were unlawfully registered in Ward 8. Field was transferred to Ward 11, Piscopo to Brookline and Swartz to Ward 8.

Flynn was told by the commissioners today that there was no law under which they could give the certificate he wanted.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were still strong in the last hour, but not on the highest level of the day, where they had been fluctuating. London rumors that conscription may cause a British cabinet rift and that the revolutionary spirit is spreading in Russia were adverse influences. Known movements of money indicate that New York banks have gained $10,351,000 in cash during the week.

At 2:15 New York gains included Allis-Chalmers 1¾, American Can 1, Car and Foundry 1¾, Baldwin 1, Colorado Fuel ¾, Pacific Tel. 1, General Electric 1¾, General Motors 2¼, Republic Steel 2¾, Studebaker ¾, Texas 1, Westinghouse 1⅝, Willys-Overland 1¾, Pressed Steel 2¾, Great Northern Ore 1¾, Mexican Petroleum 1¾, U. S. Steel ⅜, Utah Copper ½, Chino ½, Anaconda 1¼, Atchison ¾, Smelting 1, Reading 1¼, Lehigh Valley 1¾, N. Y. Central ⅞, New Haven ½, Northern Pacific ¾, Southern Pacific ¾, Rock Island ⅝, Inspiration was off ⅛, Tennessee Copper ⅛, Northern Pacific 1, St. Paul ⅜ and Pacific ⅛.

In Boston gains included Elevated 3½, Boston & Maine ⅞, Alaska Gold ⅜, American Zinc ¼, Butte & Superior 1¼, Calumet & Arizona ⅜, Greene-Cananea ⅛, Mohawk 1, Wolverine ½ and Woolen preferred, ex-dividend. Losses were Calumet & Hecla ⅜, Calumet & Arizona ⅜ and Tamarack ¼.

GENERAL MOTORS VERY STRONG.

General Motors was the feature in New York, it selling at the high record price of 291 soon after the opening. Trading in this issue was exciting. Sentiment in the market was a few minutes. It reacted a little after its 23-point rise. Its advance was due to its report for the year and the announcement of a $50 cash dividend. Common stock earnings were at the rate of $22.2 per share. President Nash says it is not a war stock. The company, he said, has not sold $1 worth of war material from any of its plants in the United States. It has more than enough to do business, for demand for our product in this country has far exceeded our ability to supply it. The domestic war order issues were the only class to show strength and activity. They began higher and closed fractionally to advance. Colorado Fuel sold at its highest in two years, while Studebaker attained a new record high. Mills and copper issues and motor stocks were more active than at any time before this week for a while in the first hour. Smelting had a fair slight reaction. After the latter the trend was upward and the tone firm. By afternoon the majority of all issues showed gains. Motor shares showed a strong tone in sympathy with General Motors.

Equipment issues had a better tone because of reports of new car building supplies. It is understood progress is being made in forcing lain the quotations. If less than a billion dollars is obtained, another loan may be floated here later. Marketing sentiment in the West is more favorable. It is asserted that the exchange was stronger. At the opening $4.71½ was bid for demand, but offers were at $4.72. Holders expect higher prices for such bills, as well as for cables. In active stock market and much outside buying is not looked for in this week.

Uphold Port Board in Foreman's Case

The full bench of the Supreme Court today sustained a demurrer of the Boston Port Directors in a proceeding brought against them by Robert Butler, seeking a writ of mandamus to compel his reinstatement as mechanical foreman of Pier 1 of the Commonwealth Docks.

It was stated that after a hearing Butler was found guilty of "slight intemperance," and that Butler was transferred at his own request to a job which he found to pay less money. The court held that since he had voluntarily consented to the transfer, he could not force the directors to restore him to his former job. No reason given thirty days in which to amend his petition, if he desires to make "any allegations attacking conduct on the part of the Port Directors."

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Once in His Life, at Least, Every Man Has a Chance to Be a Big Man

It Is Only Little Men Who Refuse to Acknowledge That They Are in Error. President Lowell Has an Opportunity to Show Whether He is a Little Man or a Big One

PRESIDENT LOWELL of Harvard, in justifying the attitude of his college on the question of giving special examinations to Jews, because the regular examination falls upon a day that is kept holy by the Jews, in a letter to Mr. Samuel H. Borofsky says: "If a boy feels ill on examination day he is not allowed to take a special examination. It is his loss." And that the Jews' predicament is no worse than the sick boy's.

Mr. Borofsky in reply says:

"When President Lowell speaks of a rule in Harvard University which deprives a boy who is ill from taking his examinations, he speaks in ignorance of facts. I happen to know of cases when special examinations have been given in cases of illness."

If Mr. Borofsky is right, then President Lowell's defence is invalid, but if Mr. Borofsky is wrong, President Lowell's defence is not necessarily valid, for there are circumstances under which a boy's illness ought not to deprive him of a year in his life, and that is what it means to be held back a year in school because an examination has not been taken.

The AMERICAN has not the least doubt in the world that the decision of the officials of Harvard was made without disrespect for Jewish religious scruples and without wanton indifference to their rights. There is probably no university in the world more free from any kind of illiberal spirit than Harvard, but sometimes her officials are just a little bit opinionated and entertain that kind of pride which, in small men, makes it difficult to acknowledge an error. This is not to say that the officials at Harvard are small men, but merely to say that this is ordinarily a small man's failing.

This community does not know that President Lowell presumed upon his scholastic friendship with President Wilson, former president of Princeton College, to oppose the selection of Mr. Louis D. Brandeis as a New England member of the President's Cabinet. This, of course, does not indicate narrowness upon the part of President Lowell, but it does mean that President Lowell had, in that particular case, at least, a small man's limitations, for he was undoubtedly used as a cat's paw by certain interests who viewed with alarm the possibility of a man of Mr. Brandeis' intellectual power and independence becoming an intimate adviser of the President of the United States.

President Lowell's interference in the matter, which so little concerned him and in which he was little qualified to have an authoritative opinion, was of small consequence in making up President Wilson's mind. But in the President's failure to put Mr. Brandeis in the Cabinet, as he originally intended and desired to do, New England lost for the first time in more than a generation a representation in the national Cabinet. While President Lowell's contribution to this result was infinitesimal, yet he made it as great as he could, and he thereby committed an error, for which many of the Harvard alumni can only forgive him on the ground of his limitations.

It is well for him to know that his attempt to cast the influence of Harvard upon the reactionary side of our great social and economic controversies is resented by hundreds of Harvard men, and is not doing the university any good in the general community. No doubt he is sincerely opposed to the Initiative and Referendum, those great reforms which regenerated Switzerland, raising it from the most corrupt to the purest government in Europe within a few years. But he ought to suspect that his opinions are more influenced by his own personal reactionary environment than by disinterested, intellectual conviction, and while any doubt remains, not of the sincerity of his opinion, but of its bias, there are those who believe that he ought not as president of Harvard to interfere in these controversies too prominently.

The AMERICAN suspects that if the Harvard officials were obliged to approach this Jewish question for the first time with the wisdom of their present experience they would decide it differently. It is more than probable that they cling to their decision because they consider it undignified and weak to yield to what we all, in our self-complacency, like to call "public clamor." But a quasi-public institution like Harvard, which has more than thirty millions of property exempted from taxation, ought to remember that "public clamor," if it is the voice of the majority, is public opinion, which presides over the councils at Harvard and ultimately has its way, whatever may be the eccentricities of those in immediate authority.

The Standpat Republican Leaders Are Just as Standpat as Ever

EX-GOVERNOR FOSS declared in open letter yesterday that neither Mr. Cushing nor Mr. McCall, the other candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, has any decent issue of principle or policy on which to base his candidacy for Governor.

This is entirely true. Both Mr. McCall and Mr. Cushing are making personal appeals for personal aggrandizement. They are without real issues. They propose no real reforms. They are merely the figureheads of two factions of the old standpat Republican organization.

Ex-Senator Burbank of the Progressive party tried very hard to make these gentlemen, and, in fact, the Republican organization, espouse SOME Progressive principles, so that Mr. Burbank could, with self-respect, join forces with the Republican party. It appears that he has utterly failed in his purpose. He was first invited by the Republican committee to address the Republican rallies, but it is noticeable that when, keeping faith with his Progressive principles, he spoke on the Initiative and Referendum and upon the economic issues which the Progressive party had adopted and which he urged upon the Republican organization, he was not favored with further invitations to speak at Republican rallies.

No sensible man can read the campaign speeches of the Republican orators and candidates without realizing that there is no intention on the part of the standpat Republican faction to become progressive or to yield a jot or tittle of their old allegiance to the reactionary interests which have financed the Republican party and its prominent individuals in recent years.

The AMERICAN would be very much interested to know Mr. Burbank's opinion of the Republican organization, as it stands today, from his recent experience. Certainly, if he is sincere, he will publicly acknowledge his disappointment.

In contrast to the issueless Cushing and McCall is Governor Walsh, with issues which appeal to every honest and intelligent citizen and with a record of loyalty to those issues during his two terms in office that guarantees his good faith and earnestness.

Under the circumstances it is not extraordinary that the Republican rallies are being poorly attended, and that the Republican leaders are privately admitting that it is impossible to defeat Governor Walsh this year.

Inklings and Thinklings

Spirit of gloom is abroad in the land. Mississippi legislator proposes law to prevent picnics at hangings.

More Truth Than Poetry

Cheer Up!

IN Greenland the snowdrifts are thirty feet deep;
The bears in their burrows are rolled,
The walruses freeze in the ice-laden breeze,
And Jiminy Crickets, it's cold!
The Eskimos shiver beside their oil fires,
While o'er them the tempest careers;
Nor dare to come forth lest a blast from the north
Should nip off their noses and ears.

IN Northwest Alaska it's forty below,
With never a trace of humidity;
The keen polar gales have congealed all the whales,
For such is their arctic frigidity.
The foxes, though covered with costliest furs,
Are turned into ice in their tracks;
And the natives can't eat any victuals or meat
Till they chop up the same with an axe.

WE'VE read through a lot of geography books
To get these statistics together.
They are not very new—but they're perfectly true
And they make pleasant reading this weather.

Shortsighted Ice Man

The man who was sent to jail for ninety days by a Jersey Justice for selling ice on Sunday made one grave mistake, which cost him his liberty. He sold the ice for a baby instead of to a corporation.

New Distinct Types of Women Easy to Classify as Flowers

Handsome Girl Like Camelia, Lovely One Like Lily, and Useful One Like "Everlasting" Plants, Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

THERE are as many kinds of women as there are of flowers and vegetables. But there are a few distinct types of femininity that are easily classified and interesting to study.

There is the handsome woman, for instance. She is usually large, and her features are regular and strongly outlined. She may be pale or rosy, but if she has color it does not suggest warmth. She may be blonde or brunette, gay or reserved, animated or reposeful, but I never think of any word but handsome for her. She is not pretty, lovely, beautiful or charming to me. She is handsome. We love to look at her. She wins admiration as does a fine picture, a house, a piano or a statue. Men always turn to look at her and are eager to be introduced.

She is admired, flattered, sought; but seldom loved deeply. Her husband is very proud of her, but he is not her passionate lover. I place her with my camelias, dahlias and hollyhocks and other scentless but attractive flowers.

"Lovely" Woman Possesses Individuality of Own and It Is Always Winning

The "lovely" woman is quite another type. She may be small or large, distinctly beautiful, pretty or merely interesting, but she is always spoken of as "lovely." She is seldom forceful in character or noticeably strong; but she possesses an individuality of her own and it is always winning and never aggressive.

Without any effort on her part, you always feel that she is unselfish, kind-hearted and pure-minded. She praises other women and enjoys other's pleasures and is thoughtful in small things. She is a great favorite with her own sex, and men give her an idolized sort of friendship, which is very apt to grow into affection if they are very much in her society.

She is inclined to treat men exactly as she treats women, because she is so sweet and pure-minded and unconscious of her own lovableness. She is seldom a belle, but she has always a host of loving friends and tender admirers, and her husband regards her as a sort of cross between an angel and a child.

She brings out all that is best in him without attempting a reform. Women are seldom jealous of her, because her innate goodness is felt by one and all.

I place this woman among my sweet lilies, thornless roses and sprays of mignonette and heliotrope, and surround her with rose geraniums and evergreens; for no matter how old she may grow she is always "lovely."

Then there is the "kissable" woman. Her size, age, tint, features, disposition, character—one and all have seemingly nothing to do with her charm. All you are conscious of in her presence is the desire to take her in your arms and kiss her. She may be absolutely devoid of personal beauty, and not young, and yet nine men and seven women out of each ten will want to kiss her if they are in her presence five minutes.

Sometimes she is good and kind and unselfish and possessed of beauty; and then she is always breaking hearts without meaning to do so and winning love she cannot return.

She sees more beautiful women giving more encouragement to men than she gives and indulging in far more desperate flirtations without causing any such disaster as she causes by one kind, sweet smile; and she cannot understand it all, at least until she has had all sorts of trouble out of it.

But the fact is that the men who are quite hardened to flirtations with the merely beautiful woman lose their heads in an insane desire to seize the kissable girl in their arms. Women who do not possess this charm and who play a bold game of flirtation without incurring any such risks and dangers find it impossible to explain the effect of the kissable girl upon her admirers.

I place the kissable woman among my luscious roses—with now and then a hidden thorn—and spicy carnations, wherein a bee may be concealed, and my fragrant magnolias.

Then there is the distinctly "intellectual" woman, who is so alarmingly well informed on all subjects and so anxious to have you realize her mental superiority. She has thought on every subject under the sun, and has formed her convictions on all matters, and the instant you broach a subject she hastens to assure you that she knows all about it.

She sometimes possesses handsome features, but her too active intellect has sharpened them and hewed away the curves of beauty. Her woman friends speak of her with great respect as "such an intellectual person."

The useful, healthful but strong and tear-starting leek is suggested by this woman. A very small flavoring of this vegetable is all one's taste requires.

The "useful" girl is another type. She can sew, cook a dinner if need be, amuse children, assist getting up entertainments for other people to participate in, dance enough to fill up an impromptu set, play cards well enough to take a hand when the old people need her, and she is an excellent nurse and reads aloud well and sings a little—enough to rock a child asleep or to help out a chorus.

She is not noticeable in any way—is neither pretty nor ugly, and is very simple in her attire. Everybody makes use of her and everybody likes her. She has no enemies and no lovers. Women like her very much, and men speak highly of her when she is brought to their attention in some way; but they never think about her voluntarily. They appreciate her highly when she helps them out of a corner, and thank her cordially, and then forget her until they need her again.

"Useful" Girl Too Often Allowed to Drift Along Into Old Maidenhood

She is not apt to marry, for men do not care for useful girls before marriage. She usually drifts into old maidenhood or marries a widower with a lot of children.

She is like the green "everlasting" or old-fashioned "live-forever" plants—serviceable and not beautiful, yet indispensable in a garden. Everybody needs it in a bouquet to serve as a background for the bright flowers, but nobody cares for it for itself. No man ever thinks of plucking it for his boutonniere, but he appreciates its effect and value in the garden.

Then there are the every-day "pretty girls"—pretty with youth and hope and good spirits merely—who have no distinguishing traits or peculiarities, but who please the eye while it beholds them, like the common field daisies, buttercups and clover blossoms growing by the roadside.

And, again, there are the critical pessimistic, fault-finding, fault-discovering woman, who always make you feel dissatisfied with yourself and the world; and these are the prickly pears, the burrs and thistles of womankind.

Not all women can become the human flower of their choice, but all women can, at least, avoid becoming weeds and thistles.

In-Shoots

Literary rubbish usually attracts more attention than chunks of real wisdom.

Occasionally a man can carry a gunshot wound in his body without being much of a hero.
